The Women's Studies Journal

Graduate Prize

for a Feminist Essay in 2017

CALL FOR ENTRIES

Entries are open for the 2017 Women's Studies Journal Graduate Prize for a Feminist Essay, awarded by the Women's Studies Association, and administered by the editorial collective of the Women's Studies Journal. The award will be presented to the author/s of a submitted essay that is considered by the judging panel to be the best representation of contemporary feminist scholarship. For the 2017 prize the theme is Intersectional feminisms: New agendas for theory and activism. We are open to a range of interpretations of this topic, and welcome submissions from all feminist graduate students.

Entries close on 1st July 2017, and the winning essay will be announced on 1st October 2017. The award consists of a $500 cash prize, and consideration for publication in the Women's Studies Journal.

Eligibility

To be eligible to enter, you must be enrolled in a graduate degree at a tertiary institution in Aotearoa/New Zealand at the time of writing the essay. All suitable entries will be considered, irrespective of gender identity.

Entries

The essay should be an original piece of work (although not necessarily research-based) that has not been published or accepted for publication elsewhere. The essay should be in the range of 4-5,000 words, and should follow the submission guidelines for the Women's Studies Journal (see <http://www.wsanz.org.nz/journal/submissions.htm>). Joint authorship is permitted, subject to both authors meeting the eligibility criteria.

Submissions (and any queries) should be sent to the WSJ editorial collective: email wsawaikato@waikato.ac.nz
