WHY STUDY AT AUT?

1 There are many places on campus to catch-up with friends, study or just relax 2 Ngā Wai o Horotiu marae – a welcoming home away from home right here on the AUT City Campus 3 You can include Pacific-related courses and placements as part of your teaching degree 4 The AUT City Campus offers a modern university environment

New Zealand's leading modern university

AUT is proud to be one of the world's best modern universities. Studying at AUT will equip you with so much more than knowledge of your chosen discipline; you'll also get a sound understanding of your place in the world, and the power you have to influence change in Aotearoa New Zealand and beyond. You'll gain expertise in problem solving, creative and critical thinking, research, analysis, written and verbal communication, leadership and collaboration. Across all of our programmes, we encourage innovation and entrepreneurship, and the ability to explore new technologies, challenge routine thinking and solve problems in new ways. Our graduates have a strong foundation for meaningful careers where they can really make a difference and a passion for achieving the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals, which focus on making the world a better place for all.

Widely known for academic excellence

Times Higher Education has ranked us in the top 50 universities under 50 years of age, and among the top 1% (251–300) of universities in the world. Our School of Hospitality and Tourism is ranked first in New Zealand by world university rankings organisation QS, and our tourism programmes are accredited by the UNWTO World Tourism Organization's Global Code of Ethics for Tourism. The Times Higher Education Subject Rankings place us in the top 250 globally for social sciences, and arts and humanities. Workplace experience is at the heart of all of our bachelor's degrees, and thanks to our ever-deepening industry connections you can complete your workplace experience with a vast number of host organisations.

An innovative teaching and learning environment

AUT's university campuses feature modern buildings that don't just win architecture awards but also offer excellent environments where students can collaborate and develop skills that help them stand out in their future careers. Our state-of-the-art buildings were created using sustainable principles, and feature inviting and functional lecture theatres, auditoriums and research spaces. AUT's success in creating transformational educational spaces has been recognised with a five-star ranking for teaching and facilities, awarded by the world university rankings organisation QS.

Research that shapes tomorrow

AUT is ranked first in New Zealand by university rankings organisation Times Higher Education for the number of times our research is cited globally. Our research benefits all New Zealanders, and our world-class researchers have expertise across the humanities. We have several world-class research centres, including the Centre for Social Data Analytics, which applies strong data science to linked data, undertaking research that tells us new things about the human experience. Our discoveries are widely used, both in New Zealand and around the world. Our research also feeds back into the classroom, and students can contribute to and learn from these research discoveries.

STUDENT LIFE

AUT is a modern and innovative university with endless opportunities, and a supportive culture that celebrates diversity and is committed to improving our local and global communities. Our students are at the heart of everything we do, and we're proactive in enabling them to succeed and be ready for any challenge in front of them.

Our Student Hubs – your place to get the support you need

AUT offers some of the most comprehensive student support services in New Zealand, and our Student Hub is where you can learn more about these services. Our professionally qualified staff include social workers who can look after and support our diverse student community. Our Student Hubs are available both online and across our campuses, so you can get help and support when and where you need it.

Getting you started on your uni journey

Studying at university is exciting and can be quite an adjustment. That's why AUT helps new students transition to university life by delivering a wide-ranging orientation programme at the start of each semester. We also offer activities throughout the semester to transition you into university life. AUT's app also provides up-to-date news, events, and information about AUT anytime, anywhere.

Helping you achieve your academic goals

We do everything we can to help you achieve your academic goals and set you up for a successful career. You'll have access to all the people, resources and technology you need to make the most of your learning opportunities. Our services include academic skills support through our library and their learning services, peer mentoring for help with assessments, childcare, free technology access and financial assistance, as well as tailored support for our postgraduate research students.

Supporting your wellbeing

Our students' health and wellbeing are our highest priority, and AUT is experienced in delivering support to aid students' overall wellbeing. This includes services like 24/7 security on campus; peer support from over 300 student ambassadors, navigators, peer advisors and RUOK advisors; financial assistance; medical, learning and systems access support, as well as physical and mental wellbeing support. We actively encourage students to be aware of their wellness needs – mind, body, and spirit. As an AUT student you have access to free and confidential counselling sessions, peer support and programmes to develop better self-knowledge and resilience.

Enabling opportunities for a vibrant uni experience

We want you to make the most of university life, and have fun and grow during your time with us. That's why we offer a range of spaces and initiatives for students including clubs, events, sporting opportunities and state-of-the-art recreational facilities. Our clubs are student-led and cover social, sustainability, cultural and academic interests. If you can't find something you enjoy, you're always welcome to create something new!

Celebrating our people

We celebrate diversity and our commitment to Te Tiriti o Waitangi with passion, curiosity and pride. We have a strong commitment to Māori and Pacific community advancement, and have dedicated teams to support all students at AUT. We were the first university in New Zealand to achieve the Rainbow Tick. We're committed to equity of access and opportunity for students, staff and visitors, and support the principles of Kia Ōrite: Code of Practice for an inclusive tertiary environment.

Our dedicated teams include disability services, and rainbow and international student support. Our Student Association (AUTSA) advocates and represents the interests of all AUT students, and shares students' voices through its Debate magazine.

Beyond learning and into employability

Our services, competitions and awards offer you enriching life experiences that will support your career once you graduate. These opportunities can help you gain an edge in the marketplace through workplace experience, international exchanges, industry connections, and CV and interview preparation for when you're ready to start your career. Our CO.STARTERS@AUT programme, X Challenge competition or AUT Ventures Ltd are also a great incubator for your entrepreneurial ideas and can help you bring your ideas to market.

“Growing up, I developed a fascination for the world and its cultures, languages and customs. After high school and much research, I realised that pursuing a degree in international studies would allow me to gain knowledge of the world and all its wonder. I chose to study a Bachelor of Arts in International Studies, with a minor in Social Sciences, because I want to acquire insight into international affairs and the social and cultural elements of human interaction. My studies have been incredibly rewarding, offering me a chance to explore diverse cultures and uncover parallels with my own. What I learned through my studies has also helped me tremendously in my final-year workplace experience, which involved a great deal of grant writing to international and regional development organisations and Palau’s diplomatic allies.”

What this qualification covers

The Bachelor of Arts is highly flexible and you can build your degree in a way that suits you and your interests.

To graduate with a Bachelor of Arts you need to complete:

Core courses (120 points)

These are courses all students in this degree need to take. These courses align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals, and you can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. One of the core courses is the workplace experience you complete in your third year.

Your chosen major (120 points)

Your major is the subject area you want to specialise in. This makes up one third of your degree, and usually consists of eight courses related to your chosen subject. You can view the list of majors in this degree on page 8.

Flexible component (120 points)

You can choose one of the following options

- Two minors (60 points each); or
- A minor (60 points) and elective courses (60 points); or
- A second major (120 points)

Your second major, minor(s) and elective courses can be from the Bachelor of Arts or different AUT degrees.

Bachelor of Arts Creative Writing

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

Are you dreaming up a novel, a screenplay, short stories, poems, the lyrics to an album, or a graphic novel? Develop your creative writing skills for the page, screen, and spaces in-between with the Creative Writing major. Your work will range from reflective portfolios to a sustained literary or multimedia work. In the Creative Writing major you explore style and genre, media, and the demands of readers, editors and publishers. You develop your skills as a writer, testing your creative ideas in an environment that challenges, critiques and supports you as you go.

What this major covers

All students in the Bachelor of Arts take a range of core courses that align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. You can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. You're also introduced to the fundamentals of creative writing and become familiar with contemporary New Zealand texts, and Māori and Pacific literature.

YEAR 2

You further your understanding of creative writing, popular writing genres and the publishing industry, and experiment with writing in a variety of different genres. You also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You explore new literatures, and plan and create an extended piece of creative writing. You also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses. In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. Recent placements included: Imersia Ltd and Namseoul University. You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare you for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

Social media and web content management, dramaturgy, fiction writing, journalism, screenwriting, travel writing, gaming narrative designer.

"I've thoroughly enjoyed being taught by such interesting lecturers. They're so well educated in their fields and so fascinating to listen to. They also have faith in your ability, which helps build confidence in yourself. Their excitement about their subjects is contagious, and the flexibility they give you in your assessments means that you can explore what has piqued your interest the most. For me, looking into Pacific poetry was a bit of a lightbulb moment – realising that poetry isn't just Shakespeare and Byron, it can be shaped to fit into any mould. Without this class, I might never have learned about some of my absolute favourite poets or how poetry can be used as a tool of empowerment."

Bachelor of Arts

Criminology and Criminal Justice

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

Criminology is the study of crime and its effects on victims and society, and the workings of the criminal justice system including the police, courts and prisons. Criminology is a great choice if you want a career in an organisation associated with the criminal justice system. In this major you develop a sound understanding of criminology in national and international contexts. You explore crime and policing in New Zealand and overseas, approaches to crime prevention and punishment, restorative justice and critical issues facing the criminal justice system.

What this major covers

All students in the Bachelor of Arts take a range of core courses that align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. You can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. You're also introduced to criminology and criminal justice, psychology and the role of social, economic and political institutions.

YEAR 2

You become familiar with theories of crime and criminality, policing and punishment, and different social research methods. You also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You advance your understanding of criminology and criminal justice, policing and punishment. You also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses. In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. Recent placements included: Department of Corrections, New Zealand Police, Rethinking Crime and Punishment, TYLA (Turn Your Life Around). You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare you for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

Department of Corrections, local authorities, Ministry of Justice, Ministry of Social Development, national and international human rights organisations, New Zealand Customs, New Zealand Police, non-governmental community groups.

"Throughout my Bachelor of Arts, the lecturers and staff were all very friendly and it was good to be around like-minded people who understand the social issues our society faces. Studying criminology really makes you aware of the factors that lead to crime, the social construct of crime, crime prevention, and the overrepresentation of indigenous people. We learned about the various issues Māori and Pacific people face throughout the criminal justice system, and how discrimination continues to be perpetuated in society. I'd like to work for a government agency where I can make sure the issues facing Māori and Pacific people are addressed."

Bachelor of Arts Culinary Arts

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

The culinary arts have changed dramatically over the last three decades. A globalised world, new technologies and increased media coverage mean that culinary arts professionals must think critically and creatively to succeed. Our Culinary Arts major prepares you for these challenges and equips you with the skills to start your own culinary career. This culinary arts degree brings together key culinary techniques and advanced theoretical concepts in food science, technology and ethics. It's designed to develop your creativity and provide the springboard for your career in culinary arts. There's an emphasis on practical and professional skills¹.

What this major covers

All students in the Bachelor of Arts take a range of core courses that align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. You can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. You're also introduced to the contemporary professional culinary environment, and classical culinary principles and practices.

YEAR 2

You further your understanding of different culinary techniques, gastronomy, food service, food and beverage production, and together with your classmates create a culinary event celebrating a global cuisine. You also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You advance your understanding of food ethics and sustainability, and contemporary New Zealand cuisine. You also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses. The Advanced Culinary Showcase course is at the heart of your final semester, giving you the opportunity to create and cater for an event. Past students hosted Hope, Strength & Love; a charity fundraising dinner for Breast Cancer Cure. The dinner, a 5-course degustation, was designed with the support of celebrity chefs Ray McVinnie, Ben Bayly and Des Harris.

- Consultant
- Owner/operator small business
- Food and beverage manager
- Food stylist
- Product developer
- Professional chef
- Teacher

"I chose to study the Bachelor of Culinary Arts as I wanted to work as a secondary school teacher. I had previously studied the Diploma in Culinary Arts at AUT, including a City & Guilds Diploma, and thoroughly enjoyed that experience. The degree has a diverse range of courses that cover relevant issues affecting the culinary and hospitality world, and society overall. I've thoroughly enjoyed being able to investigate areas like sustainability, food ethics, food history, and the social role of food and hospitality within society; all taught by interesting and talented lecturers. That was the highlight of my university career."

Bachelor of Arts Economics

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

Economics is vital to both the social sciences and public policy. This major develops and applies concepts and frameworks that are essential for understanding and addressing critical economic and social issues. Economics is about choice; the choices people, companies and governments make every day – from how we respond to price changes to how governments address issues like growing income inequality or climate change. In a world with increasingly scarce resources these decisions are crucial. That’s why economists are highly sought after in both the private and public sector.

What this major covers

All students in the Bachelor of Arts take a range of core courses that align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. You can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. You’re also introduced to microeconomics, macroeconomics and learn how to think like an economist.

YEAR 2

You further your understanding of economic tools and frameworks, including the workings of financial markets, consumer and firm behaviour, and the measurement of the welfare generated by market outcomes. You also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You advance your knowledge of economic principles and practices, and also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses. In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare you for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

Policy advisor in a government ministry, researcher in a consulting firm or non-profit organisation; strategic planner, analyst or policy advisor in a local council.

Bachelor of Arts Education

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

Interested in learning and how it relates to culture, community, social media and social justice? We've all been to school and probably all have a view on education. This major re-examines these views, and can lead to a variety of careers in the wider education sector.

What this major covers

All students in the Bachelor of Arts take a range of core courses that align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. You can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. You also explore critical questions in education, including what education is, how and why today's educational institutions developed, and the role sense of place plays in learning.

YEAR 2

You become familiar with the impact of social media on learning, the links between education and social justice, gender and sexuality in education, and how you can play a role in addressing today's global issues. You also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You explore education philosophies and alternatives to formal schooling, and consider what the future of New Zealand education could look like. You also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses. In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare you for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

The skills you develop in this major are valuable for a range of careers, including: social development work, youth and community work, marketing, communications, human resources, the arts, training and mentoring.

There's a direct pathway into teaching as you may qualify¹ for the one-year Master of Teaching and Learning which leads to teacher registration.

1. You need a B average for entry to the Postgraduate Diploma in Teaching and Learning or B+ average for entry to the Master of Teaching and Learning.

"Unfortunately, Pacific learners have been underachieving for a long time within the New Zealand education system. As a Pacific woman, I have lived experiences of dealing with inequality in education, and I knew studying education would allow me to bring forward what needs to be done. After I completed my Bachelor of Arts, I decided to take my studies further. I'm planning to pursue a career in a variety of settings, including social development work, human resources, youth and community work, training and mentoring, and other areas of education. I want my Pacific brothers and sisters to fully realise that they're capable and to see possibility rather than being restricted to what they've always known."

Event Management

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

A great event can generate positive publicity, create loyal followers, and leave lasting memories for businesses and tourism cities. Event managers are the architects behind these events. They love to solve problems in a creative and innovative way, have an eye for detail and the ability to work across diverse areas with a team. In this programme, you learn to conceptualise, strategise, design events, project manage and conduct a feasibility study that helps stakeholders evaluate your event for potential funding or execution. Our vast network of industry partners offers you opportunities to gain event workplace experience in your final year.

What this major covers

All students in the Bachelor of Arts take a range of core courses that align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. You can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. You're also introduced to finance for hospitality, tourism and events, and learn to create digital media.

YEAR 2

You become familiar with event planning and different types of events, and develop a proposal for an event design. You also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You explore contemporary issues in event management, leadership principles and how to produce an event, including selecting a venue, build the event team and consider services like catering, lighting and security. You also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses.

In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. Recent placements included Artweek Auckland, Diwali Festival, Total Sport: Trail Running NZ, Villa Maria Event Team and Compass Dance Company. You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare you for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

- Conference organisers
- Event employees in local authorities
- Event manager/assistant manager
- Event marketing
- Festival management
- Trade shows

"Successfully planning and producing a public event as part of my degree was a massive highlight. This gave me the opportunity to test my skills in a real-life setting and proved to be an amazing networking opportunity after graduating. I loved meeting like-minded people at AUT. Another standout for me was being invited to a lecture where Dan Turner from Rhythm and Vines was speaking and, after hearing about his career, I knew events was the right career for me. My main role now is to oversee a whole range of events and activations for an extensive list of clients, from producing a run sheet to packing in an event or doing a site visit."

YEAR 2

You become familiar with the connection between cultural heritage and tourism, ethics and the impact of tourism on natural areas. You also complete a field study of a tourism destination in New Zealand or the South Pacific. You also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You advance your understanding of sustainable tourism management and innovation in tourism, and work with an industry partner or community partner to plan an initiative to address a global issue in tourism. You also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses.

In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. Recent placements have included Air New Zealand, Disney, Auckland Unlimited and Auckland Sea Kayaks. You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare you for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

Graduates could work in:

- Government
- Destination marketing organisations
- Operations management
- Industry and trade organisations in tourism and hospitality
- Social enterprises
- Community leadership
- Conservation
- UN agencies
- Business owner/operators

"The staff at AUT are amazing; they're all so caring and supportive, and genuinely want you to succeed. I had a 'lightbulb' moment during a lecture in one of my undergraduate courses, Tourism in the Environment, where my professor talked about the challenges of people with disabilities when it comes to accessing tourism services and products. This sparked a real interest in me and I knew this was something I was passionate about. My PhD is investigating the lived experiences of people with chronic pain, and how it has affected their ability to engage in tourism. From my research, I hope to give a voice to those that live in chronic pain."

Bachelor of Arts Interpreting

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

Interpreting is so much more than just repeating someone's words in a different language. A good interpreter can understand nuances and cultural appropriateness, and convey levels of formality across a range of professions and industries. The challenge is to do justice to every situation. In the Interpreting major you learn to recognise cross-cultural implications for interpreting, and the ethical and professional responsibilities of an interpreter. Throughout your studies you also become familiar with interpreting for legal, healthcare, business and other community settings. AUT's Bachelor of Arts in Interpreting is an NZSTI Endorsed Qualification.

What this major covers

All students in the Bachelor of Arts take a range of core courses that align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. You can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. You're also introduced to critical media studies and how human relationships are constructed through language.

YEAR 2

You further your understanding of effective communication, the role of the interpreter, and societal contexts for interpreting and translation. You also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You study advanced level courses related to interpreting, and focus on either health or legal interpreting. You also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses. In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

Legal interpreting for government and local authorities, health interpreting, freelance interpreting work, foreign affairs and border control, remote interpreting service providers, refugee and migrant services.

"I chose the interpreting programme at AUT because it had the longest history and the best reputation. One of the main highlights for me was the opportunity to study in such a diverse environment. Coming from Argentina, I had never been in a classroom where so many languages and cultures were represented. As a community interpreter now, I sometimes work in the courts, at appointments with a variety of medical specialists, family and employment mediation processes, and immigration interviews. I also work as a conference interpreter, offering simultaneous interpreting services both in a booth on location and online through Zoom. I sometimes also offer professional development workshops for interpreters."

Bachelor of Arts Māori Media

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

Gain insight into the fast-paced media industry, as well as a sound understanding of te reo me ngā tikanga Māori. A strong foundation in te reo Māori and basic tikanga is highly valued in the field of Māori media – regardless of ethnicity. You learn to apply a Māori world view to the media and could build web applications, make films or design interactive multimedia from a bicultural perspective.

What this major covers

All students in the Bachelor of Arts take a range of core courses that align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. You can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. You also further your understanding of the Māori media industry and telling Māori stories through different media.

YEAR 2

You advance your knowledge of Māori media and gain the skills to create a variety of digital media. You also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You study advanced level courses related to Māori media, and work on Māori film or media projects. You also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses. In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. Recent placements included: Māori Television, Auckland Museum, Kura Productions, Ngā Aho Whakaari, South Seas Film and Television School, and Tangata Whenua Television. You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare you for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

Broadcasting, government and local authorities, marketing and sales, multimedia development, production and filming (sound, lighting, producing, directing, scripting, editing), public relations, radio, te reo/cultural advisor, and presenter.

“When I started university, I was naively thinking that law was the only career that would enable me to help my people. When I discovered that studying Māori media would let me showcase Māori stories globally, I naturally gravitated to this degree. I had always been interested in watching indigenous stories on screen, and I believe we need more Māori and indigenous voices in the media industry. For one of my courses I was tasked with conducting an audio interview about the concept of whānau. This enabled me to return home to the Hokianga and interview whānau, hapū and iwi about their stories surrounding the toheroa; a large but increasingly elusive shellfish.”

New Zealand Sign Language and Deaf Studies

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

New Zealand Sign Language is an official language of New Zealand, and an understanding of sign language and Deaf culture is useful for many careers. This major covers communication strategies in NZSL and the cultural knowledge to work with Deaf clients and colleagues. Sign language skills are in demand in all areas of New Zealand society, including education, health, legal and social service settings, as well as any customer-facing area of work.

What this major covers¹

All students in the Bachelor of Arts take a range of core courses that align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. You can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. You also become familiar with New Zealand Sign Language and Deaf culture.

YEAR 2

You further your understanding of New Zealand Sign Language and Deaf culture, and also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You study advanced level courses related to New Zealand Sign Language and Deaf culture. You also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses. In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. Recent placements included: Auckland Deaf Society, Ko Taku Reo Deaf Education New Zealand, and SignDNA. You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare you for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

Professionals working with Deaf clients, colleagues, students, as well as any customer-facing profession. For example: teachers, health professionals, hospitality professionals, disability service coordinators, social workers, lawyers.

"The Deaf lecturers were incredibly supportive. One course that particularly resonated with me included writing an essay about comparing my hearing self to my Deaf self. It was then that I discovered my identity after realising how both worlds were very similar. My role now brings me satisfaction on so many levels, and I enjoy promoting and advocating for New Zealand Sign Language and Deaf awareness to external organisations. Just by being there and watching the whaiora tangata grow into strong, confident, and independent people on their journey to recovery is pleasing to see."

New Zealand Sign Language – English Interpreting

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

Professional sign language interpreters are in high demand in New Zealand. Sign language interpreters are essential to ensure the Deaf community has access to New Zealand legal, educational and health systems. This major prepares you for this rewarding career by familiarising you with the Deaf community and culture, and helping you achieve proficiency in New Zealand Sign Language. You develop interpreting skills for a wide range of settings, and explore the ethical issues of sign language interpreting.

The first year focuses on developing fluency in New Zealand Sign Language (NZSL), and the study of the Deaf community and culture. You observe professional Sign Language interpreters and practise live interpreting in a variety of settings. You also become familiar with academic communication, knowledge and enquiry, and culture and society.

YEAR 2

You further your understanding of New Zealand Sign Language and Deaf culture, the role of the interpreter and current issues in the Deaf world.

YEAR 3

You study advanced level courses related to New Zealand Sign Language and continue practising your interpreting skills in different settings. In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. Recent placements included Auckland Zoo, Auckland Art Gallery, workplace meetings, university lectures, parent-baby groups and community workshops. You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

Interpreting settings in the Deaf community including: Health, education, legal profession, events, employment, theatre.

"Living with a Deaf mother, as well as having a Deaf uncle and grandparents, and an aunt who is an NZSL interpreter have definitely been guiding influences in the decision to becoming an interpreter. As a CODA, I already had some understanding of the day-to-day injustices Deaf individuals face. However, one AUT lecture had a particularly powerful impact on me. It was a presentation on the experience of Deaf people in New Zealand's criminal justice system. Never before had the extent of the lack of equality for Deaf people been made so clear to me. It absolutely inspired me to become a part of achieving a better, fairer and more equal life experience for Deaf people."

Bachelor of Arts Social Sciences

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

In this major you develop a sound understanding of the interplay between social forces, economics, and politics. You explore power dynamics, influences on decision making, demographic and behavioural trends, and the challenges caused by economic, political and social disadvantage. Along with the depth of understanding you'll gain, you'll develop critical analysis and problem-solving skills, which are crucial for the public service, social sector and community organisations; all areas where many of our graduates start their successful careers.

What this major covers

All students in the Bachelor of Arts take a range of core courses that align with different United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. You can choose from different courses for each of the core course themes. You're also introduced to social sciences, how social thinking has shaped societal and governmental responses to policy problems, and the role social institutions play.

YEAR 2

You explore social research methods, and further your understanding of ethics and society, social change, and New Zealand politics and policy making. You also take courses from your second major, your minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You study advanced level courses related to social sciences, and take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses. In the second semester you also complete the Work Integrated Learning course; a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. Recent placements included: ASB Bank, CCS Disability Action, Goodman Fielder, Love to Live, NZ Council of Trade Unions. You could also take the Foundations in Research course to prepare you for postgraduate study.

Career opportunities

Community work, local government, non-governmental organisations, policy analysis, research, further study in social work and foreign affairs.

"I left high school with no University Entrance and little understanding of what options I had. I was lucky enough to gain special admission into the School of Social Sciences and Public Policy at AUT. I gravitated towards the social sciences because of the focus on understanding society. The three-year programme offers students the opportunity to take full ownership of their education, and this is embodied in the final-year workplace experience. Importance is placed on building students' ability to reflect on theories as well as on the world's most pressing issues, and to apply this thinking to public policy and practice. This is what makes learning in the social sciences meaningful."

BEd([Specialty]Tchg) | AK3594

QUICK FACTS

Level	7
Points	360
Duration	3 years full-time, part-time available
Campus	North & South
Starts	26 Feb 2024

Teachers play an essential role in motivating, inspiring and educating young people who will go on to shape the future of our society. At AUT, you can prepare yourself for a career in early childhood or primary/intermediate education, and learn from staff who are passionate about teaching. Our three-year teaching programmes include 25 weeks of teaching placements, so you can get first-hand experience in centres or schools, and graduate with confidence in your skills. For those interested in Pacific primary or Pacific early childhood teaching, there are courses that specifically focus on this specialty.

Entry requirements

"I've always loved children, even as a child, but I never thought that teaching was the path for me as I lacked confidence in myself and my abilities. I previously completed a degree in sociology and employment relations at another university. Yet, God called me to teaching. At AUT, I loved meeting amazing people who share the same passion for supporting and guiding our Pacific and Māori students in their learning. I'm also grateful for the amazing support by the teaching staff and the student services at AUT. I was able to develop my own teaching philosophy, and find my own voice and thoughts through my studies."

"As a press photographer, news cameraman and videographer, I've filmed inside active volcanoes around the world, chased tornadoes, covered typhoons, cyclones, tsunamis and earthquakes, and experienced minus 50 degrees in Siberia and plus 50 degrees in Ethiopia. Teaching was one of the three career choices I thought of after I left school. I've ticked the other two off over the last 25 years. I felt now was the perfect time to retrain and become a teacher. There's a deep satisfaction knowing that the students want to learn and that they're excited to be there and see a connection with what they're learning to their world. Seeing ākonga acknowledge their mistakes and work out solutions to get to that 'aha' moment is a highlight for me."

“I’ve been involved in event management since the age of 12 and have always had a passion for hospitality, in particular hotel management. If you have a passion for hospitality and a desire to learn, I’d recommend the Bachelor of International Hospitality Management. I’m definitely looking for a busy, exciting events career – organising major events, events related to arts and culture, sustainable events and potentially even combining my two passions by organising events for a major hospitality establishment. Besides enjoying the academic side, the extracurricular side of getting involved with AUT life has been amazing! I’ve joined many clubs, have founded my own club, have taken up numerous leadership positions and have participated in all the free and fun events AUT puts on.”

Hospitality Enterprise

Scan this QR code for details about courses, where your study could lead, and stories about our great graduates and students.

Learn to manage both customers and employees, and find out what it takes to create memorable hospitality experiences. The Hospitality Enterprise major focuses on the development of hospitable employee and customer experiences. You'll explore strategies to improve staff wellbeing and propose innovative ways to create sustainable futures for the hospitality industry.

What this major covers

You take two core courses that give you a fundamental understanding of applied food and beverage management, and international hospitality management. You're also introduced to human resource management in hospitality, human and organisational behaviour, and social enterprise and innovation in hospitality. You also take the first courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 2

This year you explore critical and ethical perspectives of hospitality and its role in society, service design and how to create an excellent guest experience. You also take courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses.

YEAR 3

You further your knowledge of people management in hospitality and tourism, leadership principles and innovation in hospitality. You also take the final courses from your second major, minor(s) or elective courses. In your final semester, you complete valuable workplace experience with an organisation (this is the Work Integrated Learning course). It's a great opportunity to develop industry networks and make a decision on your professional career after graduation.

Career opportunities

- Hospitality recruitment
- Training and development
- Employment relations
- Human resource manager
- Corporate or regional sales
- Guest relations

"If you're looking for a really good hospitality degree or aren't sure yet where you're heading, then I think this degree is really great. It teaches and encompasses many different aspects of hospitality, and it has such a large range of majors and specialities to choose from that everyone can find their fit. My degree helped me get a job at the Park Hyatt Auckland during my studies, which gave me the opportunity to be part of the team that actually opened the hotel. In my last year, for my final-year workplace experience, I found a job at recruitment company Aotal, which has now led to working for them on a full-time basis. I'm really grateful for the opportunities my degree has given me."

"I've loved meeting new people and the opportunities that have come out from AUT. I've worked with famous New Zealand chefs and have loved taking in all of their knowledge. After volunteering at an event at AUT's Four Seasons Restaurant, I was offered the opportunity to work with Ben Bayly at his fine dining restaurant Ahi. I was also invited to work at the Winter Series – Don't fear the deer, which was hosted at AUT and showcased Cervena venison. During that event, I worked alongside Graham Brown, executive chef and international ambassador for the Deer Industry NZ. I look forward to working as a chef. I have a job lined up once I graduate, and already have a plan to move to London in two or three years."

"When I was little, I saw a cupcake kiosk that made me want to bake cupcakes too. Then as I delved more into the world of baking and pâtisserie, that dream morphed into becoming a pastry chef. Watching shows like Zumbo's Just Desserts and Choccywoccydoodah made me realise how much you can do, and the spectacular things these people can make. AUT has one of the most in-depth, practical-based pâtisserie courses. The lecturers I had were absolutely incredible – they were supportive, extremely knowledgeable, and let you make mistakes and try new things. My class also got quite close, so it was such a comfortable, fun learning environment and I know we'll continue to be friends."

“I think the aspiration to be a teacher partly draws from the fact that this was also my late father’s occupation in Samoa. I felt it was time to hang up my laboratory gown and enter the classroom. I had a great chemistry teacher in high school, and I wanted to inspire other students to the sciences. As a proud Samoan, seeing so few Pacific people in the science field also pushed me into teaching. I’d recommend the Graduate Diploma in Secondary Teaching to other students because the outline of the programme provides future first-year teachers with the necessary tools to navigate their way as teachers.”

Financial assistance

We know that sometimes things happen and financial stress can impact your academic success. That's why we offer financial support that ranges from offering grocery or fuel vouchers, to helping with that unexpected bill.

StudyLink

Visit studylink.govt.nz for tools, tips and information to help you plan and understand the costs you will have while studying.

Scholarships and awards

Scholarships and awards are a great way to fund your university study. There is a wide range of scholarships and awards available to AUT students at all stages of their study including the Welcome to Auckland scholarship and Find Your Greatness scholarship (details below).

Visit the scholarships website for a full current list of scholarships offered by AUT and external funders, as well as application forms and closing dates. You can also contact AUT's Scholarships Office for advice on scholarships, awards and the scholarship application process.

2024 AUT Welcome to Auckland Scholarships

Because we recognise the challenges students may face when moving to Auckland, AUT's three-year Welcome to Auckland scholarships make a contribution towards students' accommodation and study fees. These scholarships recognise high-achieving secondary school students living outside of Auckland who intend to enrol in bachelor's degree study commencing in 2024.

2024 AUT Find Your Greatness Scholarships – School Leaver

AUT's Find Your Greatness undergraduate scholarships for school leavers reflect our commitment to creating great graduates. These three-year scholarships recognise students' academic achievement, as well as students' potential leadership ability and contribution to their school or community, cultural pursuits or sport at a representative level.

The Find Your Greatness scholarships are offered in the four categories below for study commencing in 2024:

- Academic Excellence
- All Rounder
- Hiki Ake (Lift Up)
- Kiwa (Māori and Pacific students)

Applicants will be considered in all categories for which they are eligible.
