AUT has been a university for 20 years now and that student-centred vision has helped guide the development of world-class programmes, teaching, research, facilities and partnerships.

Today, AUT is New Zealand's second-largest university, with 29,250 students, 994 doctoral candidates, 3,400 staff, 195 professors and associate professors, and more than 100,000 AUT alumni. Ranked in the top 1% of universities worldwide, AUT is the top millennial university in Australasia, and ranked first in New Zealand for its global research impact and international outlook.

World-class teaching and learning

We're proud to be one of the world's best modern universities – Times Higher Education has ranked us as the top millennial university in Australasia and we're in the top 1% (251–300) of universities in the world. We encourage innovation and entrepreneurship, and the ability to explore new technologies, challenge routine thinking and solve problems in new ways. Many of our papers incorporate digital concepts into everyday learning and teaching. As a student at Te Ara Poutama, you have access to the latest facilities and software to create apps, e-books and films that will help you tell the stories that matter to you and your whānau. Our dual boot lab, for example, is a great place to develop high-quality audio-visual apps and iBooks. We also have the latest video recording hardware and software, and a specially designed sound room where students can record voiceovers.

Creating world-ready graduates

AUT's mission is to create great graduates, and each member of our staff contributes to this. We offer exceptional learning experiences that prepare students to be successful wherever in the world their career may take them. Study with us and you not only learn academic knowledge related to your discipline, but also gain experience of the wider world and valuable industry contacts. We know that to create truly great graduates, we must do more than get them ready for their career; we must get them ready for the world.

That's why workplace experience is a key part of both the Bachelor of Māori Development and Bachelor of Arts, and your final year includes a work placement in radio, TV, film production, education, government, or a tribal or community organisation.

Innovative and relevant research

AUT is ranked first in New Zealand for global research impact by Times Higher Education and the US News Global Universities Rankings. We deliver leading research in a number of areas within Māori and indigenous development, working closely with academics and organisations from around New Zealand and the world. As a postgraduate student you work closely with academic staff who are known as experts in their field – from Māori business and entrepreneurship to Māori media and from Mātauranga Māori to New Zealand history and the Treaty of Waitangi. Our research also feeds back into the classroom, and students can contribute to and learn from these research discoveries.

Committed to te reo Māori

You'll learn te reo Māori in a dynamic and interactive way, and our innovative courses introduce you to te ao Māori – the language and the culture that surrounds it. Our Te Whanake website is the most innovative and interactive way to learn te reo Māori. We're also proud of the large library of Apple iBooks and apps we've developed to help our students learn, including our te reo Māori dictionary app.

Our marae: Ngā Wai o Horotiu

The gateway to AUT, Ngā Wai o Horotiu marae is located on the City Campus and can be hired for community use. Ngā Wai o Horotiu marae is a whānau, cultural and spiritual centre. It embraces the history of Māori and welcomes the diverse cultures at AUT.

The marae is one of the ways AUT acknowledges the importance of the principles of the Treaty of Waitangi and expresses our deeply held belief that AUT is a centre of learning for all peoples, but also a place where Māori have a special and distinct role.

Our marae's wharehau (meeting house) was named Te Pūrengi by the local iwi Ngāti Whātua. The name represents the ropes which hold the mast of a waka in place. Te Pūrengi is the focal point of Ngā Wai o Horotiu.

Our wharekai (dining room) is called te Kaipara after the Kaipara Harbour. Ngāti Whātua traversed the Kaipara from the North. The word 'para' is a reference to the para fern which is a traditional Māori delicacy. Kai-para means 'to eat the para fern'. It's a fitting name for our dining room. Kaipara – the house of gourmet food.

You can find Ngā Wai o Horotiu on the corner of Wellesley and St Paul Street in Auckland.

To take a virtual tour of the marae visit aut.ac.nz/virtualtour

QUICK FACTS

Level: 7

Duration: 3 years F/T, 6 years P/T

Campus: City

Starts: 22 Feb & 12 July 2021

Kerehi Warwick

Ngāpuhi, Ngāti Kahu

Te Reo Māori Teacher, Mangere College
Bachelor of Arts in Māori Development

"In this role I'm responsible for teaching te reo Māori me ōna tikanga to a diverse range of students from Year 9 to Year 13. I love being able to normalise Māori culture and language within an urban setting. I'm constantly using the skills I gained from my te reo Māori papers at AUT in the classes I teach now. I loved getting to know the people at AUT. One of the highlights for me was being a part of Titahi ki Tua, the Māori students' association at AUT, and connecting with other Māori who have the same educational aspirations as me. In my third year, I was also fortunate enough to complete my workplace experience with Te Wananga o Aotearoa, where I was teaching basic te reo Māori."

Do you enjoy learning about people and places at an individual, national or international level? Want to learn how to use this knowledge to make a difference in our increasingly globalised society? With the AUT Bachelor of Arts you can choose from majors in areas as diverse as Māori development, languages, criminology, psychology, event management and education. It's great preparation for a huge range of careers, and you can build your degree in a way that suits you – study a single or a double major, select from a wide range of minors or add elective papers from another area of study.

Throughout your study you'll develop effective communication, critical thinking and analysis skills, as well as the ability to research and present professionally. These skills are key to any professional role. Your final year includes valuable workplace experience, working on a project or event, or at an organisation related to your major.

2nd-year student, Bachelor of Arts in Māori
Development

"My old man and I went to AUT's open day, AUT LIVE, where we talked to quite a few people. I first looked at communication studies, then Māori media and eventually settled on Māori development. I had grown up bilingual and my dad is the general manager of an iwi trust. I've always been around Māori language and culture, and have always found it interesting. I really enjoy the variety of stuff I've been able to study as part of the Bachelor of Arts, from history and economics, to culture and society. I love learning and I like the freedom to study what I find interesting. I love researching and I know I want to do a Master of Arts when I finish my degree, and probably a PhD as well."

Double your career opportunities with conjoint or double degree programmes

Jamie Lee Raumati

Tuwharetoa, Tainui, Te Rarawa me Ngai Te Rangi

CEO & Founder, Stay Connected Ltd / Owner, Bag a Bean Ltd
Master of Arts in Māori Development student
Bachelor of Arts in Māori Development and Social Sciences

"I had heard from whānau and friends that AUT has a really good support network, especially at Te Ara Poutama. The vibe at AUT is amazing and you feel like you can achieve anything. My highlight at AUT was supporting other Māori students as a tāura kaiwhatu, Māori learning mentor. I love helping my people because I know with a little support and a nudge in the right direction they can achieve anything they set their minds to. I now split my time between running my two businesses; Bag a Bean Ltd, which hires out bean bags to events, and Stay Connected Ltd, which works with businesses to support women in New Zealand in achieving their goals and aspirations."

Double your career options – study the Bachelor of Arts and:

- Bachelor of Computer and Information Sciences (conjoint)
- Bachelor of Business (conjoint)
- Bachelor of Laws (double degree)

Today, standing out from the crowd is more important than ever. Conjoint programmes, double degrees and second majors double your knowledge and opportunities, but don't take double the time to complete.

Conjoint programmes

You study two degrees at the same time in a single programme of study. It's usually possible to complete two three-year degrees in four to five years. You need to maintain a B grade average across all papers and do papers from each degree every year.

Double degrees

The difference between double degrees and conjoint programmes is that in the double degrees you apply for and enrol separately in each of the two degrees. If you're considering doing this, it's important that you contact AUT to discuss your plans. Double degrees can be completed either one after the other or concurrently.

Second majors and minors

When you take a second major from the majors available in your degree this is called a double major. If you take the second major from another AUT degree this is called an additional major. Minors are also available in these and some other subjects. Adding a second major or a minor allows you to study another area that interests you from a wide range of subjects, so long as your timetable permits.

Minors available within Te Ara Poutama:

- Digital Cultures
- History
- Māori Development
- Popular Culture and Performance
- Te Reo Māori

You can also choose to study a major or minor from another programme at AUT as part of your Bachelor of Arts. To see the wide range of majors and minors available visit aut.ac.nz/minors

AUT encourages early application. Places are limited.

Projects and Relationships Co-ordinator,

Bachelor of Māori Development in Māori
Media

"It's really important that Māori and Pacific voices are heard and our faces seen. I'd always wanted to work in the film industry, so the Māori Media major was an obvious fit because it allowed me to study film, television and the media, but with a cultural lens. Even though I'm Samoan rather than Māori, it was such a rewarding experience. We were picking up cameras and making our own films, going into the studio to record and edit. That kind of learning really appealed to me, and the friends I made are friends for life. The biggest highlight of my time at AUT however was graduation. That was the culmination of years of not only my own personal sacrifice but that of my family, friends and those who taught me. My success is definitely not mine alone."

There has been a huge shift in the media landscape in the last decade. The introduction of a Māori television channel has opened many doors for people interested in Māori media. A strong foundation in te reo Māori and basic tikanga is highly valued in this field – regardless of ethnicity. That's why graduates of AUT's Māori Media major have an edge in the competitive media industry. Study with us and you gain insight into the fast-paced media industry, as well as a sound understanding of te reo me ngā tikanga Māori. We're proud of our innovative and supportive learning environment. Throughout your studies, you could build web applications, make films or design interactive multimedia from a bicultural perspective.

A feature of our programmes is Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL), a system that provides credit for your previous learning and experience. You may be able to get formal credit if you have completed a university or technical institute course that closely matches the level and content of an AUT paper. You normally need to have completed this course within the last five years. If you have a variety of learning and experience (for example professional development workshops and work experience) that matches the learning within a paper, you may be able to apply for non-formal credit.

Major

What this major covers

Year 1

Your first year introduces you to Māori media studies, helping you develop media production skills from a kaupapa Māori perspective.

John Henare Kingi

Tuhoe

Te Reo Māori Teacher, Mangere College
Bachelor of Māori Development in Māori Media

"I guess the main highlight for me was the immense amount of support I received from all the staff, especially from every member of staff at Te Ara Poutama. They went above and beyond for me in all aspects of my life really. Another highpoint for me were the new relationships I formed while studying at AUT, which was a very safe, inclusive and welcoming environment. In my role now, I get to be part of shaping young Māori learners into a better version of themselves; whatever they believe that to be. I enjoy having the opportunity to work with them and encourage, inspire and show them that whatever they aspire to be is achievable. My proudest moments are when my students understand what we're learning in class, and that spark hits them and they just run away with this new knowledge."

"My research explored Te Ruki Kawiti's 1846 final speech, known as Te Tangi o Kawiti – said after the signing of Te Tiriti o Waitangi in 1840 and the battle of Ruapekapeka in 1845, and its impact on resistance activities and the relationship between the Crown and Ngāti Hine, particularly in the Treaty settlement process. I hope my research encourages other Māori, Tangata Whenua and indigenous whānau to think about what research means to them and their whānau. The Master of Arts is crafted so you learn and can apply the learning directly to your research topic. It was challenging at times but I've learnt so much."

Natascha Díaz Cardona

Colombia

Doctor of Philosophy candidate

"I obtained my bachelor's and master's degrees in Colombia, and I love academia and teaching. When my husband and I were planning to move to New Zealand with our children we realised this was a good opportunity for me to pursue my professional goals. My PhD supervisor – Professor Sharon Mazer from Te Ara Poutama, AUT's Faculty of Māori and Indigenous Development – was working at AUT and I knew that she had to be the one to guide me during my research. It has been the best decision ever. My research is part of the developing conversation about the relationship between theatre and violence in Colombia, and internationally. I want to propose a different approach to see violence. The performance of violence can be analysed theatrically – which is to say, politically – and then redressed through social action."

Tania Wolfgramm

Whakatohea, Te Aupouri, Ngai Tai, Vava'u Tonga
Doctor of Philosophy candidate

"I was attracted to Te Ara Poutama by the reputation of its academic staff. My supervisor Dr Ella Henry is one of the academic staff in Te Ara Poutama, and AUT has a good reputation for research. That was very important to me. I relish my talks with Ella who continues to challenge me and helps me clarify my thinking. My PhD is a very creative process for me.

"For my doctoral research, I'm focusing on the topic of evaluation. The key research question I'm aiming to answer through my research is: How might Māori and indigenous philosophy and values contribute to improved evaluation design? I believe my research is important for Māori, Pacific and indigenous development and wellbeing, which is something I continue to be committed to.

"Evaluation models based on Māori and indigenous values can be an empowering and creative process, and could be employed across any endeavour, with evaluation thinking informing the design and development of any initiative and across any sector.

"The biggest challenge for me has been ensuring that my PhD is prioritised before any other work. Fortunately, our faculty administration staff, the AUT librarian and the PhD support staff have all helped me out by suggesting various programmes and workshops to help me increase my efficiency."
