Welcome to Language and Culture

The study of language, society and culture is at the core of the broad spectrum of knowledge known as the humanities. In the School of Language and Culture you learn how to apply this knowledge to real-life issues such as intercultural communication, media analysis, language loss and language maintenance, refugee and migrant education, language teacher education and many other areas. You'll embark on a journey to develop your powers of communication, critique and analysis, earning a robust qualification that crosses borders and breaks down social, cultural and linguistic barriers.

Learning in our school is interactive, engaging and well-supported by lecturers who are passionate about their respective areas of expertise in language and culture, including critical applied linguistics, intercultural and language competence, language and culture policy analysis, translation and interpreting, creative writing, new media, ESL, Chinese, Japanese, Spanish and New Zealand Sign Language. You may be thinking about a career in New Zealand or overseas, in business or in the community, or simply looking to add new skills, languages and knowledge to your repertoire.

Whatever your goal, you'll find that AUT can help you achieve it.

1 An understanding of different languages and cultures can be a launchpad for successful careers around the world 2 All of our majors cover the intercultural skills you need to play a leading role in our ever-changing world 3 The AUT City Campus in Auckland, the home of AUT's language and culture programmes

Designed for the changing world

Technology and travel are making our world ever more connected, and even our workplaces are becoming more and more global. In today's world, being able to understand different cultures and viewpoints is a highly sought after skill, no matter where your future may take you. You may not realise it but studying languages will equip you with so much more than knowledge of another language and culture; you'll also develop the critical thinking, communication and problem-solving skills in high demand by employers around the world. Study language and culture with us and choose from majors that cross a range of disciplines, from writing for the web to mastering a language. But no matter what major you choose, you'll develop the intercultural skills to play a leading role in our ever-changing world.

Workplace experience as part of your degree

Study with us and you not only learn academic knowledge related to your discipline but also gain valuable experience of the wider world. Workplace experience is at the heart of the Bachelor of Arts, and thanks to our ever deepening industry connections you can choose from a vast number of host organisations for your placement. You spend your final semester working with an organisation on a project related to your major, a great way to get workplace experience while still being able to get feedback from AUT lecturers. Many of our students are also offered jobs during these placements. It's one of many reasons why 9 out of 10 AUT graduates recommend us as a great place to study.

Innovative language learning

If you want a university with future-focused teaching, an engaging learning environment that embraces people and ideas, and programmes designed for a wide range of meaningful careers – then welcome to AUT. We're ranked in the top 250 in the world for linguistics in the QS World University Subject Rankings 2018, and you study in an interactive environment where you collaborate with your classmates. Our language classes have a strong focus on contemporary, everyday language, which means you'll have the language skills to work, study and holiday abroad. Our students often win awards in the Auckland Japanese and Chinese speech competitions. You'll practise your skills in authentic settings, including our weekly Japanese club Ocha no Jikan, Chinese conversation groups and through Skyping with students at our partner universities overseas. There are also funded study tours to Japan through Technos and Japanese government initiatives.

Tailor your study to your interests

Our Bachelor of Arts is flexible – specialise in one or two disciplines, add a major or minor from a different degree, or combine it with another AUT degree and enrol in conjoint or double degree programmes. The choice is yours. To give you an advantage in our increasingly global world, you could also add a minor or elective paper in Chinese, Japanese, Korean, New Zealand Sign Language, Samoan, Spanish or te reo Māori.

Life at AUT

AUT is a modern and innovative university with endless opportunities and a supportive culture that celebrates diversity. Studying at AUT is your chance to meet new people and develop lifelong skills, while getting the support you need to succeed at university and beyond.

We're proactive in enabling all students to succeed, and our comprehensive student support services ensure that you have an amazing experience inside and outside the classroom.

We're here to help

No matter what the problem, the Student Hub is here to help. You can find a Student Hub on each campus and our specialist staff can help with anything from enrolment and student ID cards to matters far beyond university, like support with visa and immigration matters, StudyLink issues or landlord challenges.

Dedicated support for new students

From Orientation to our many academic and cultural support programmes, our student support services are there to make starting out as a new student as easy as possible.

Creating career-ready graduates

The AUT Employability and Careers team helps you plan in advance for your future career by developing job search and interview skills, while building your personal brand and networking skills. We'll also introduce you to employers looking to recruit AUT graduates.

Gain an edge on the competition

The AUT Edge Award challenges, rewards and formally acknowledges the 'C skills' – collaboration, co-operation, community, curiosity, communication and creativity – gained through your volunteering, leadership and employability activities.

International study opportunities

An international student exchange offers an amazing opportunity to study overseas as part of your degree. Study for a semester or a year at one of our partner universities around the world, immerse yourself in another culture, make lifelong friends and get international experience before you graduate.

Helping you succeed in your studies

Our library and learning support team offers a wide range of services and resources designed to help develop your academic skills. The Library also runs a range of workshops to help you get the most out of your studies, and our peer mentoring programme enables students to learn from others who have already completed the same paper.

Top internships around the world

A good internship can be the foundation of a great career. That's why AUT Internz places students and graduates with top companies in New Zealand, North America, Asia and Europe – including Paramount Recording Studios, the Sundance Institute and Westpac Institutional Bank in New York.

A launchpad for entrepreneurs

Every entrepreneur starts somewhere. At AUT, the best place for aspiring entrepreneurs is CO.STARTERS@AUT. This nine-week programme helps you turn your entrepreneurial ideas into a viable business.

An outstanding learning environment

At AUT you study in an innovative and interactive environment that embraces creativity, collaboration, and the sharing of ideas and culture. A number of our buildings have won prestigious architecture awards, and we're constantly improving our built environment to offer students the best possible learning experience.

Free access to digital tools and resources

We offer students all the digital tools needed to succeed, including free Wi-Fi on campus, the full Office 365 suite for up to five devices and free access to lynda.com, a world-leading online learning platform.

Getting involved in campus life

Joining a club is a great way to meet like-minded people and make lifelong friends outside of lectures. Choose from a range of student-run social, sustainability, academic and cultural clubs – a great way to meet new people, participate in events and get involved in campus life.

Join a gym or sports team

AUT is New Zealand's leading sports university, with state-of-the-art sports facilities, on-campus gyms and a huge number of sports teams and events. As an AUT student you can participate in a wide variety of sports, from social on-campus games to elite international competitions.

Holistic approach to wellness

AUT offers comprehensive medical, counselling and mental health services. We also run Te Puna Oranga, an integrated programme that regularly hosts wellness-related events on campus.

Disability student support and resources

Our Disability Support team is committed to helping you participate as fully as you can in learning and student life. We work with students before they start at AUT to help identify their specific needs and ensure they're set up for success.

Getting around

Whether it's finding your way to campus or getting around between lectures, AUT offers a range of resources to help you navigate your new environment, including shuttle buses that travel between campuses and interactive online maps.

Safe and friendly campuses

We make sure that our students are – and feel – safe. Our friendly security staff are available day and night to help if you have any concerns.

Sally Kim

Creative Entrepreneur, Seoul, South Korea
Bachelor of Arts in Chinese Studies and Event Management

"With the immense support I got from the teaching and supporting staff, I gained confidence to aim higher and pursue grander goals. AUT's high-tech and creative campus environment ignited my passions for the arts and languages. I went on a student exchange for one semester at National Taiwan Normal University studying Chinese language and culture. It was one of the best decisions I made in my life and this experience has left a lingering impression on my heart. Being happily lost in a vibrant and exciting city, and making life-long friends from across the globe opened my eyes to a bigger world."

International student exchange

An international exchange is an amazing opportunity to study overseas at one of our partner universities. We have student exchange programmes with a number of renowned institutions around the world – including in China, Japan, Korea, Spain, Taiwan and the USA – and we encourage our students to study overseas as part of their degree. Exchange programmes are generally for a semester, and students who have been on an exchange often find it changes their lives. Current exchange partners include:

- Comillas Pontifical University, Spain
- Hirosaki University, Japan
- Kanda University, Japan
- Malmö University, Sweden
- Namseoul University, South Korea
- National Taiwan Normal University, Taiwan
- Radboud University, The Netherlands
- SUNY Oswego, USA
- University of Jinan, China
- University of Miyazaki, Japan
- Waseda University, Japan

Katie Nicol

Ngāpuhi

3rd-year student, Bachelor of Arts in Japanese Language

"I decided to go on a student exchange to Hirosaki University because it's located in a smaller city and I thought I would have more chances to use my Japanese here. I love all the friends I've made here, both from Japan and from other countries. Despite being from different backgrounds, we can all communicate in Japanese. Just by being here you learn so much about the culture, language and people. You have no other choice but to speak Japanese. Hirosaki University is very attentive towards its international students and will not hesitate to help you with any problems you may have. The staff and lecturers are friendly and enjoy promoting Hirosaki to its foreign students."

Overview

QUICK FACTS

Level:	7
Points:	360
Duration:	3 years F/T, P/T available
Campus:	City
Starts:	24 Feb & 13 July 2020

Mata Moeka'a

Programme Assistant, Living Without Violence Programme, Friendship House
Bachelor of Arts in International Studies

"As a Bachelor of Arts student you complete workplace experience in your final year, a chance to use all the knowledge you've gained over the three years of your degree and put those theories into practice. I did my work placement at Friendship House, where I now work. During my workplace experience, I was part of the business management team. I sat with everyone who worked here and got a glimpse of their journey before Friendship House, what they do in the organisation and how it benefits people. I loved working alongside them and understanding how they help people in the community. For me, the most memorable thing about my time at AUT was meeting people and making great friends. I also loved the different activities that happened on campus."

Do you enjoy learning about people and places at an individual, national or international level? Want to learn how to use this knowledge to make a difference in our increasingly globalised society? With the AUT Bachelor of Arts you can choose from majors in areas as diverse as languages, international studies, criminology, psychology, event management and education. It's great preparation for a huge range of careers, and you can build your degree in a way that suits you – study a single or a double major, select from a wide range of minors or add elective papers from another area of study. Throughout your study you'll develop effective communication, critical thinking and analysis skills, as well as the ability to research and present professionally.

Majors

- Chinese Studies
- Creative Writing
- English and New Media Studies
- International Studies
- Interpreting
- Japanese Studies
- New Zealand Sign Language and Deaf Studies
- New Zealand Sign Language – English Interpreting

Other majors available in the Bachelor of Arts are: Children and Learning, Conflict Resolution, Criminology and Criminal Justice, Culinary Arts, Economics, Education, Event Management, Māori Development, Psychology and Social Sciences.

What this qualification covers

Year 1 & 2

You take core papers depending on your major, including writing, communication, research, culture and society and digital technologies, along with your major(s) and minor papers.

Year 3

Your final semester includes workplace experience, working on a project/ event or at an organisation related to your chosen major. In Year 3, you also study any remaining major or minor papers as well as electives.

Double your career options – study the Bachelor of Arts and:

- Bachelor of Business (conjoint)
- Bachelor of Computer and Information Sciences (conjoint)
- Bachelor of Laws (double degrees)

Conjoint programmes

You study two degrees at the same time in a single programme of study. It's usually possible to complete two three-year degrees in four to five years. You need to maintain a B grade average across all papers and do papers from each degree every year.

Double degrees

The difference between double degrees and conjoint programmes is that in the double degrees you apply for and enrol separately in each of the two degrees. If you're considering doing this, it's important that you contact AUT to discuss your plans. Double degrees can be completed either one after the other or concurrently.

Second majors and minors

Adding a second major or a minor allows you to study another area that interests you from a wide range of subjects, so long as your timetable permits.

AUT encourages early application. Places are limited.

1. New Zealand Sign Language – English Interpreting: Apply for AK3006.

Huge opportunities for workplace experience and international study exchanges

English Teacher, Albi, France
Bachelor of Arts in International Studies and Social Sciences

"As a bicultural Kiwi who grew up in the multicultural community of Porirua, the intercultural communications papers I studied at AUT had a huge impact on me. Learning theories about intercultural communication helped me make sense of my world and explain my experiences to others. I loved learning from academic staff who are experts in their field, and appreciated being taught to question, challenge and critically analyse the world around us. I currently work at the tertiary engineering school IMT Mines Albi, which is a Grand Ecole, France's version of an Ivy League school. I teach third-year grad students and master's students, as well as the personnel of the school. I also offer private lessons for adults wanting to upskill."

Toby Games

English Teacher, Qilu Normal
University, Jinan City, China
Bachelor of Arts in Chinese Language

"The Bachelor of Arts degree suited me well, and the facilities at AUT are excellent. The highlight of my studies was going on a student exchange to Jinan University in China in my second year at AUT.

"For my third-year workplace experience, I worked for a restaurant company that has operations in New Zealand and China. I learned about trading rules and regulations, and was sent to Shanghai for three weeks to give their restaurant a New Zealand makeover. This experience opened doors for me and I made valuable contacts.

"After graduating from AUT at the end of 2016, I'm now employed as an English teacher at Qilu Normal University, teaching university students who are training to be teachers.

"Another project I'm working on is looking into the possibility of opening a cooking school to teach European cooking here. I'm also involved in setting up a new International 'English Village' here in Jinan, based on a model in South Korea. My role is to recruit staff and design the curriculum."

1. If you have a secondary school qualification in Chinese you may be exempt from one or more of the introductory papers and go straight to higher level papers, subject to a placement test. You then need to make up the points with other papers.

Nick Jones

Freelance Narrative Designer/
Teaching Assistant, AUT
Student, Master of Creative Writing
(Scriptwriting)
Master of English and New Media Studies
Bachelor of Arts in Creative Writing &
English and New Media Studies

"I've had so many great teachers at AUT. The lecturers aren't content with simply standing in a lecture hall and barking at me like other universities might; they're working alongside me as mentors and co-workers rather than superiors. This has allowed me to flourish in my work at a rapid speed.

"The lecturers see us as a collective of people working together to discover new things and create exciting innovations in all sorts of different areas of society. The fact that the learning environment enables collaboration between students and teachers makes AUT an important university in today's changing world, as people of my generation and younger are interested in relationships rather than hierarchies.

"I was quite successful with my bachelor's degree, so I decided to take it further and give myself a better chance to break into the industry. Since then, my focus has been on developing stories in a transmedia environment. In 2017, as part of my master's thesis, I developed and helped implement a video game narrative for a commercially successful virtual reality game called Orbus VR.

"For my current studies, I'm developing the script for a feature-length horror film, which is already garnering interest from industry leads."

Hayley Burrows

PR & Social Media Senior Account Manager, Lasso Media & PR
Postgraduate Diploma in Communication Studies
Bachelor of Arts in English and New Media Studies

"As soon as I visited the AUT City Campus I knew AUT was the university for me. Everyone was so nice, and the campus had a great vibe. I decided to study the Bachelor of Arts in English and New Media Studies with a minor in creative writing because English was my favourite subject at school. After reading about the AUT degree, I knew I'd love it.

"While I was at AUT, I met so many amazing people. Some are still my best friends today. I wrote for university magazine Debate, got to binge watch Buffy for one of my assignments (the dream!), and was given the opportunity to be a junior lecturer to certificate students, which was an incredible learning experience.

"We were learning about the power of social media when I was a student back in 2009. I also really appreciated how we got to actually get out into the world and complete real-life work experience.

"In my role now I'm responsible for developing social media strategies, creating content, managing brands' social media pages, planning events, promoting new products and services, reputation management... The list goes on! I love everything about my role. Each day is different, and I get to be creative."

Bachelor of Arts International Studies

To contribute to the increasing globalisation of the world, countries need people who understand the impact of global trends and issues, and can interact effectively in a multicultural environment. Intercultural competence is a skill highly valued by employers around the world. The International Studies major helps you develop the skills to contribute effectively in this changing global environment, and interact with people with different backgrounds and world views.

There's a choice of study pathways, enabling you to develop interdisciplinary knowledge to suit your interests and career goals. You can include papers from social sciences, business, culture, education, applied linguistics or languages. In your second year you can study overseas for one semester in the US, Spain, Japan, The Netherlands, Sweden, Korea or Taiwan. It's an ideal major or minor to complement another major, especially in science, technology, engineering and maths.

What this major covers

Core papers

All students complete Bachelor of Arts core papers that cover multi-literacies (including academic and digital literacies), concepts of culture and society, and research. We recommend that you do two or three of the core papers in your first year, along with specific major papers listed below, especially if you're thinking of doing overseas studies in your second year.

Year 1

All students take the following papers:

- Intercultural Competence
- A language paper in Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Spanish, Samoan, te reo Māori or NZ Sign Language

You also choose from a number of electives, including:

- A Pacific Reader
- Critical Media Studies
- Intercultural Competence in a Global World (essential for students going on an international exchange)

Year 2

Papers can include:

- Methodology of Language Teaching
- Classroom Practice
- Borders, Boundaries and Globalisation (compulsory)
- Language and Communication
- Language in Society
- Japanese Society and Culture
- Societies, Cultures and Practices
- Introduction to Chinese Culture or Contemporary Chinese Society
- Te Tiriti O Waitangi: The Treaty of Waitangi

Year 3

Papers can include:

- Democratic Participation and Social Action
- Globalisation, Innovation and Change (compulsory)
- Asian and Pacific Issues
- Global English
- International Relations
- Japanese Religions and the Samurai
- Multicultural Communities
- New Literatures
- East Asian Values and Beliefs

Workplace experience

Workplace experience (the Work Integrated Learning paper) is the final part of your degree and takes a full semester. This is a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice.

Recent placements included:

- Red Cross
- Office of Ethnic Communities
- New Zealand AIDS Foundation (NZAF) – African Programme
- The Palestinian Federation, Chile
- ANZ Bank

AUT encourages early application. Places are limited.

2. With relevant translation and interpreting papers

Nicola Thomas

Head of Consulting, Transition Partners Limited, Leeds, United Kingdom
Bachelor of Arts in International Studies

"I took a gap year after secondary school and travelled across South America. When I came back to New Zealand and researched universities, I came across the Bachelor of Arts in International Studies. I had a passion for culture, language, travel and international affairs, so this degree was the logical progression for me.

"I chose AUT as I liked that students were encouraged to get workplace experience in their final year. That was really helpful. I was also attracted by the smaller, interactive classes, as opposed to big lectures at other universities where you don't interact with your lecturers.

"I loved the creative teaching methods, cultural immersion trips and the use of online tools to virtually learn about culture. I appreciated that we were encouraged to learn and practise a language as part of our degree, and had the opportunity to study overseas for a semester. The lecturers were down-to-earth, the facilities modern and there were loads of extracurricular activities to get involved in.

"Being able to understand cultural differences thanks to my papers at AUT has been priceless, helping me not only work overseas myself but it's also invaluable when working with international colleagues – from the cultural differences with a help desk in India, to talking with potential candidates who live in Europe or dealing with management based in Australia."

KEY FEATURES:

- Prepares you for interpreting careers in medical, legal and business settings
- Suitable if you already speak two languages
- Workplace experience in your final semester

Bachelor of Arts Interpreting

Interpreting is so much more than just repeating someone's words in a different language. A good interpreter can understand nuances and cultural appropriateness, and convey levels of formality across a range of professions and industries. The challenge is to do justice to every situation.

In the Interpreting major you learn to recognise cross-cultural implications for interpreting, and the ethical and professional responsibilities of an interpreter. You practise interpreting consecutively and simultaneously between English and another language. You explore the effects of intonation and the use of idioms in spoken English. Throughout your studies you also become familiar with interpreting for legal, healthcare or business settings. These skills will serve you well in our increasingly multicultural local and global communities.

What this major covers

Core papers

All students complete Bachelor of Arts (BA) core papers that cover writing, communication, research and digital technologies. We recommend that you do two or three of the core papers in your first year, along with specific major papers listed below.

Interpreting papers

You must complete the following papers:

- Critical Media Studies (compulsory)
- Interpreter Role, Ethics and Practice
- Societal Contexts for Interpreters and Translators
- WeSpeak: Pronunciation, Phonology and Effective Communication
- Advanced Interpretation Legal Studies
- Advanced Interpretation Health Studies

Plus two of the following papers:

- Principles and Practice of Translation and Interpreting
- Advanced Health Interpreting
- Telephone Interpreting and Video Conferencing
- Advanced Legal Interpreting

SEE YOURSELF AS:

- Bilingual
- A communicator
- A great listener
- Having an ear for detail

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES:

- Legal interpreting for government and local authorities
- Health interpreting for various health sector organisations
- Freelance interpreting work
- Foreign affairs and border control
- Movie voiceovers
- Language Line (telephone interpreting)
- Refugee and migrant services
- International business conventions or conferences

Ludy Chakhto

Interpreter, Mangere Refugee Resettlement Centre
Graduate Diploma in Arts in Interpreting

"I talked to a lecturer in AUT's School of Language and Culture about studying translation. She asked me one question and it changed everything. It was: what do you want to do – work with people or sit in an office and work by yourself? I wanted to work with people and so chose interpreting.

"As part of the programme, we covered the legal and healthcare systems and community services because that is what people need to deal with on a daily basis. AUT staff guided me through my study, and helped me choose the right number of papers each semester. I enjoyed the teaching methods AUT uses, and loved meeting people from different nationalities.

"I'm now interpreting for Syrian refugees at the Mangere Refugee Resettlement Centre, where I first arrived when I came to New Zealand as a refugee from Syria. I enjoy helping them adjust to life in New Zealand. I got the job because I was studying at AUT and passed my first semester papers, and I'm planning to continue working there.

"I love that the people who interviewed me at the Mangere Refugee Resettlement Centre when I arrived now see me as their co-worker. This makes me feel that I've accomplished something one year after arriving in this country. I love going there."

Taylor Marston

Student, Kobe University, Japan
Postgraduate Certificate in Business Studies
Bachelor of Arts in Japanese Language

"I had always dreamt of working in Asia, and started to teach myself Japanese and Chinese when I was in secondary school. However, I found myself more attached to the Japanese language, so I decided to enrol in the Bachelor of Arts in Japanese Language at AUT.

"I chose AUT for its immersive and practical approach to learning a language. AUT's course is more hands-on and practical, as opposed to theory-based. I also loved being able to get involved in so many things by doing my degree – I taught as a student mentor at an Auckland high school, I was leader of the Japanese club at AUT, and I was the MC for several events over the course of my degree.

"The exchange to Sapporo was a life-changing experience for me, and wouldn't have been possible without the international exchange programme at AUT.

"I was twice awarded the Prime Minister's Scholarship for Asia and also received a study grant from the Asia New Zealand Foundation. I came second in the JSANZ national university level Japanese speech contest, and won the international prize from Technos College in Tokyo. I'm currently completing a master's degree in political studies at Kobe University in the Graduate School of International Co-operation Studies."

Rebekah Guy

New Zealand Sign Language
Interpreter
Bachelor of Arts in New Zealand Sign
Language – English Interpreting

"Once I'd made the decision to study Sign Language interpreting, I instantly knew it was the right one. I enjoyed being part of such a supportive environment, and loved that the papers were interactive and could be adapted to the needs of Sign Language classes and bringing in interpreters if needed.

"We had members of the Deaf community come in and chat to our class all the time, and there were social gatherings where we could practise our skills. I also loved that the degree included 50 hours of practicum time. I spent a weekend interpreting at a Deaf youth camp, and also interpreted for Deaf mums at a Plunket group.

"I now work as a New Zealand Sign Language Interpreter, and love the variety of my work. Any time people communicate with each other there could be a need for an interpreter – this could be at a funeral, going to the doctor or hospital, or saying goodbye to someone in a hospice. Every day, I work with different people and in different places.

"I feel it's quite a privilege to be in these interpreting situations. As someone who is socially conscious, I love that I can use my understanding of New Zealand Sign Language to support my clients and minimise injustice in the world in a small but meaningful way."

Jaime Dowdle

Teacher Aide / Secretary,
Otago Deaf Society, Dunedin
Bachelor of Arts in New Zealand Sign
Language and Deaf Studies

"I fell in love with New Zealand Sign Language and picked it up very quickly. That was definitely one of the highlights of my studies at AUT. I consider gaining my degree and mastering New Zealand Sign Language a personal achievement.

"I'm Deaf myself but I didn't grow up knowing New Zealand Sign Language. I always felt something was missing. Studying this degree was a great way to learn more about my own culture and community.

"Because I understand both worlds, I can help the Deaf but can also help the hearing better understand Deaf people and their community and culture. It's great that when people need to ask me about Deaf-related subjects, I can help and support both. AUT has opened that door for me, and has given me everything and more to conquer the world.

"I loved doing my workplace experience at the Auckland Deaf Society, working in their administration team, and I still have a great relationship with the Auckland Deaf Society and its members. It helped me realise that I wanted to make a difference within the office and through education."

Tracy Han

4th-year student, Bachelor of Arts in International Studies & Bachelor of Business in Human Resource Management and Employment Relations conjoint programmes

"I've always had an interest in people and learning about language and different cultures. I was intending to include a business major as part of my degree anyway, so it didn't take me long to decide to pursue conjoint programmes. Studying conjoint programmes also meant I had greater flexibility and more variety in choosing papers. Conjoint programmes offer so much content from two different degrees, and equip students with the unique ability to understand the world through diverse perspectives. AUT is the university for a changing world, not only because it offers relevant, industry relevant knowledge, it also gives students exposure to international experiences and encourages them to develop their C skills – collaboration, co-operation, community, curiosity, communication and creativity. This helps create 'great graduates' who are ready to take on new challenges within the future of work."

"When I first moved to New Zealand six years ago, my first goal was to improve my English. My first English course helped me learn the basics but then as soon as I enrolled at AUT, I felt myself getting more involved in the uni atmosphere and wanting to continue with the Bachelor of Arts in order to make use of my language skills. I highly recommend the Diploma in English Language if you are passionate about exploring the English language further. The diploma improved my confidence, whether it was in terms of improving my understanding in class, increasing my ability to express my ideas fully in written assignments or making me feel less self-conscious about participating in class. I really enjoyed all the facilities available at AUT, which further encouraged me to keep going."

"I've really enjoyed studying at AUT with its knowledgeable lecturers and staff, awesome fellow students, and the challenging and interesting papers. I've enjoyed being surrounded by such intelligent and humble people who value and respect each other. I like that AUT encourages you to use your identity as a valuable commodity for relationship building and connecting with others. I've enjoyed getting out of my comfort zone, and participating in this supportive and creative community. I was one of the co-founders of the AUT African Students Club, and also joined Debate magazine and AUT's Muslim Students Association. Through these activities, I met lifelong friends, and was able to connect with external organisations and become involved in leadership programmes and youth awards like the Office of Ethnic Community's inaugural Young Leaders Auckland Programme, the Umma Trust and being awarded the Auckland City for Peace Youth Award."

"When I came to New Zealand, I arrived at the Mangere Resettlement Centre where AUT offers pathways to newly arrived and resettled refugees. Many refugees who had their education interrupted by civil war use these programmes to prepare themselves before pursuing a career in New Zealand. I then studied English language programmes to build my academic strength and set the foundation for my career. These courses were a huge part of my success as they helped me start the journey towards completing my goals; a journey that had been interrupted by war and migrating from country to country. Overview of our postgraduate qualifications

Postgraduate Certificate in Language and Culture

In this one-semester programme you can advance your understanding of multilingualism, cultural competency, discourse, language education, translation and interpreting.

Postgraduate Diploma in Language and Culture

This one-year programme provides you with advanced knowledge of multilingualism, cultural competency, discourse, language education, translation and interpreting.

Master of Creative Writing

The Master of Creative Writing enables you to work on a writing project of your choice, under the mentorship of an established creative writing professional. You work in a supportive and dynamic environment where you can produce creative works in a variety of genres and media. Classes are taught by our leading creative writing tutors. They take you through key stages of a creative production – from developing a concept to hooking an audience and submitting a project for publication. You're assigned a supervisor who will provide feedback and support as your project progresses. There is also the Master of Creative Writing for Screenwriters that offers mentorship and dedicated classes by award-winning film-maker Andrew Bancroft.

Master of English and New Media Studies

The Master of English and New Media Studies focuses on the emerging area of new media. Papers cover a range of aspects related to new media and English communication, including applied linguistics, translation and interpreting, language teacher education and literacy. The second part of the programme is your research project where you can explore an area of your interest. There is an emphasis on research projects with a connection to the community, industry or business.

Master of Language and Culture

This new master's degree provides a fresh and flexible approach to applied and sociolinguistics. You can conduct in-depth research in the fields of multilingualism, cultural competency, discourse, language education, translation and interpreting.

A feature of the degree is the opportunity to draw on students' own linguistic backgrounds in a specific project paper designed to be assessed multilingually, including (but not exclusive to) Samoan, Māori, Spanish, Chinese, Japanese, English and New Zealand Sign Language.

Master of Professional Language Studies – Language Teaching

Designed for teachers with qualifications and experience in language teaching, this programme advances your professional skills in teaching English or another language. It combines advanced academic knowledge with practical language teaching skills. As part of your studies you complete a reflective practice project in an area of teaching you want to research in more depth.

Master of Philosophy

The Master of Philosophy is a one-year research-only master's degree. It gives you the opportunity to undertake a research project of your interest, under the supervision of language and culture staff. It can also serve as a pathway to more advanced research at doctoral level.

Doctor of Philosophy

The Doctor of Philosophy is a thesis-based research degree that leads to advanced academic and theoretical knowledge in a specialist area. The programme enables you to make an original contribution to knowledge or understanding in the field, and meet recognised international standards for such work. You work closely with a supervisor to prepare a thesis, which is then examined by independent experts applying contemporary international standards.

University admission to AUT bachelor's degrees

For New Zealand citizens and residents and international students studying in a high school in New Zealand

To gain admission to bachelor's degrees, you must have met the requirements for University Entrance plus any specified admission requirements for a programme, such as specific subjects, portfolios and interviews.

For more information on entry requirements, including entry requirements for international students, refer to the AUT Calendar or visit www.aut.ac.nz/calendar

Please note: AUT, like all other New Zealand universities, is required to manage enrolments. This is because of government policies that restrict the number of funded places available for domestic students in tertiary education.

Admission categories

You may be granted University Entrance under one of the following categories:

- NCEA University Entrance
- Ad Eundem Statum admission (at an equivalent level) – this includes Cambridge International Examinations (CIE) and International Baccalaureate Diploma Programme (IB)
- Discretionary Entrance
- Special Admission

Common University Entrance requirements

STANDARD	NCEA	CIE	IB ²
Overall	Require NCEA level 3 certificate which consists of 80 credits, including at least 60 credits at level 3 or higher. Can include up to 20 credits at level 2. Note: Credits to achieve NCEA level 3 may include unit standards from non-approved subjects. Subject credits Total of 42 level 3 credits including: • 14 credits from one approved subject • 14 credits from a second approved subject • 14 credits from a third approved subject	A minimum of 120 points on the UCAS Tariff ¹ at A or AS level from an approved list (equivalent to NCEA approved subject list). Must include at least three subjects (excluding Thinking Skills) with grades D or above.	IB Diploma with minimum 24 points
Numeracy	At least 10 level 1 (or higher) numeracy credits (can be achieved through a range of subjects)	A minimum grade of D in IGCSE ³ mathematics or any mathematics subject at AS or A level.	Any mathematics subject – IB Group 5
Literacy	Total of 10 level 2 (or higher) literacy credits including: • 5 reading credits • 5 writing credits From specific standards in a range of NZQA English language rich subjects.	A minimum grade of E in English Language and/or English Literature subject at AS or A level.	Literature or language and literature (SL or HL) – IB Group 1, with English as the language.

1. UCAS (Universities and Colleges Admissions Services for the UK) Tariff = system which converts AS and A level grades into points.

2. New Zealand residents who have taken IB but have not been awarded the Diploma may apply for discretionary entrance.

3. IGCSE = International General Certificate of Secondary Education.

Where programmes require a specific subject, it is expected that a student will have achieved a minimum of 14 credits in that subject (unless indicated otherwise).

NCEA approved subjects

For a list of NCEA approved subjects for University Entrance visit the NZQA website, www.nzqa.govt.nz

AUT language rich subject list

Art History, Business Studies, Classical Studies, Drama, Economics, English, Geography, Health Education, History, Media Studies, Physical Education, Social Studies, Te Reo Māori, Te Reo Rangitira.

Alternative pathways into AUT bachelor's degrees

Students who have just missed University Entrance or did not get into their chosen degree could consider enrolling in one of the foundation studies certificates offered at AUT. Please visit www.aut.ac.nz/universityentrance

Discretionary Entrance

Discretionary Entrance is available to applicants who have attained a high level of achievement in Year 12 and want to undertake university study.

International students can't apply for Discretionary Entrance.

You can apply if you:

- Have not completed Year 13 in a New Zealand secondary school or have done Year 13 but not attempted to gain University Entrance
- Have not otherwise qualified for admission (or have attempted University Entrance)
- Are a domestic student (New Zealand or Australian citizen or permanent resident). If Australian, your most recent schooling must have been in New Zealand
- Are under 20 years of age on the first day of the semester in which you begin study and meet other requirements of the programme for which you apply

People who missed University Entrance in Year 13 may be considered for mid-year admission in the following year.

You can't apply for admission for Semester 1 if you studied in Year 13 after 1 June. However, you can apply for admission into Semester 2.

Minimum academic criteria for Discretionary Entrance

- NCEA level 2 certificate endorsed with minimum of Merit or CIE/IB equivalent
- Minimum of 14 credits in each of four NCEA level 2 (or higher) subjects, at least three of which must be on the approved subject list
- Meet UE literacy and numeracy standards, or their equivalent.

The application is a two-step process. First, you indicate you want to apply through Discretionary Entrance on the standard application form. If you meet the criteria you are sent a second form in which you provide further information and a school recommendation.

The recommendation will provide proof of your maturity, motivation, capability and readiness to undertake degree-level study and also verify that you were not enrolled in Year 13 beyond 1 June in the year prior to admission. Please refer to the AUT Calendar or visit www.aut.ac.nz/calendar

Please note: Applicants are considered on a case-by-case basis and must also meet other selection criteria for the programme for which they have applied. There is a non-refundable assessment fee of $50.00.

Admission at equivalent level (Ad Eundem Statum)

An applicant will be considered for Ad Eundem Statum admission if they:

- Have successfully gained University Entrance through CIE or IB or an approved qualification from a New Zealand secondary school of special character
- Have successfully completed a recognised foundation programme or other recognised tertiary qualification/ study of at least 120 points at level 3, or at least 60 points at level 4 in one course of study and have completed Year 13 at a NZ secondary school, or equivalent.
- Have qualifications from an overseas secondary school or tertiary institution deemed by AUT to be sufficient for entry into an undergraduate degree programme.

Please note: Applicants will be required to supply an official academic transcript with their application.

Bursary

If you sat Bursary (prior to 2004) rather than NCEA please refer to the AUT Calendar or visit www.aut.ac.nz/calendar

Special Admission

New Zealand citizens or residents who are over 20 years of age on or before the first day of semester can apply for degree-level entry through Special Admission.

English language requirements

If you don't have English as your first language, you may have to show evidence of your English language skills.

International students studying at secondary school and applying for University Entrance must achieve UE Literacy through New Zealand secondary school qualifications NCEA, CIE or IB. IELTS can't be substituted.

In all other cases another form of English language testing is required. Minimum IELTS requirements for each programme are included on the relevant pages in this publication. For other recognised English tests and more information, visit www.aut.ac.nz/englishrequirements

International students

Contact us for information regarding studying at AUT if you're not a citizen or permanent resident of New Zealand or Australia, or a citizen of the Cook Islands, Niue or Tokelau islands.

Visit www.aut.ac.nz for entry requirements for specific countries.

Fees & scholarships

Cost is an important factor when thinking about university study. This page gives you an idea of the approximate tuition fees at AUT, and different options to help you fund your education including scholarships, student loans and allowances.

To give you an idea of approximate costs, the 2019 tuition fees are shown below (based on full-time study and completing 120 points per year). All fees are in NZ dollars and include GST. The 2020 tuition fees will be advertised on www.aut.ac.nz/fees as soon as they have been set.

Domestic student tuition fees

First-time domestic students are entitled to one year of fees free.

Undergraduate programmes

Fee (per year)	Approximately $3,060.00–$6,873.00 ^{1,2}
----------------	--

1. Part-time students pay a proportion of the fee based on the number of academic points they are studying.
2. This fees range includes 60-point (one-semester) programmes.

International student tuition fees

Undergraduate programmes

Fee (per year)	Approximately $14,925.00–$28,365.00 ¹
----------------	--

1. This fees range includes 60-point (one-semester) programmes.

Other fees you may have to pay:

- 2019 Compulsory Student Services Fee – $646.00 for 120 points or $5.38 per academic point
- 2019 Building Levy – $71.00 for 120 points or $0.59 per academic point
- Additional fees for course materials or elective papers (check with your faculty if there are additional fees for your programme)

Please note that you have to pay your fees in full by the date specified on your fees invoice.

To find out more about fees call +64 9 921 9779 or the AUT Student Hub on 0800 AUT UNI (0800 288 864).

Free fees for your university study

Eligible domestic students starting tertiary education receive one year of full-time study fees-free¹.

To check if you're eligible for fees-free study in 2020 visit www.aut.ac.nz/fees

1. Domestic students only, not available to international students.

Scholarships and awards

Scholarships and awards are a great way to fund your university study. There is a wide range of scholarships and awards available to AUT students at all stages of their study. Visit the scholarships website for a current list of scholarships offered by AUT and external funders, as well as application forms and closing dates. You can also contact AUT's Scholarships Office for advice on scholarships, awards and the scholarship application process.

To find out more call +64 9 921 9837 or visit www.aut.ac.nz/scholarships

Support for scholarship students

Undergraduate scholarship students – whether the scholarship was awarded for academic endeavour or for excellence in sports, culture or leadership – have access to an extensive programme of support, including professional development and networking opportunities, and one-on-one support.

Student loans and allowances¹

If you are a full-time domestic student, you may qualify for a student loan or allowance. Student loans and allowances are administered and paid by StudyLink. The application process can take some time, so it's a good idea to apply early. You can apply for a student loan or student allowance before your enrolment at AUT is complete.

To find out more call 0800 88 99 00 or visit www.studylink.govt.nz

1. For domestic students only
