Welcome to Te Ara Poutama

Takahia te ara poutama ki ngā pae tāwhitiwhiti, tēnā koutou, tēnā koutou, tēnā koutou katoa.

Te Ara Poutama, the Faculty of Māori and Indigenous Development, aspires to lead AUT as a faculty of excellence and innovation in teaching, research and scholarship relevant to the communities we serve.

Our qualifications are at the cutting edge and have been developed in response to the need for skilled Māori professionals in the fast-growing Māori sectors of business and media. At the same time we recognise and are responsive to the increasing demand for non-Māori working professionals who have knowledge of Māori culture, language and the Treaty of Waitangi.

Our qualifications are flexible; they can be tailored to meet your needs. Importantly, we celebrate the value and contribution of all peoples to the future advancement of Aotearoa New Zealand.

Our graduates are able to succeed in the contemporary Māori world. They are confident, inspirational and in demand.

Nau mai, haere mai.

Why study at Te Ara Poutama?

100%

committed to digitally
immersed learning

Focused on technology and entrepreneurial pathways

Supportive whānau
environment

You have access to fantastic facilities and software including the latest video recording equipment and a specially designed sound room.

Big-hearted and diverse

As an AUT student you study at a modern and innovative university, and have endless opportunities to make your mark. Our students come from a variety of backgrounds, and you find all the support, encouragement and inspiration you need. We offer some of the most comprehensive student services and support in New Zealand, but you find care and support beyond these services – in conversations with lecturers, group work with classmates and in the many campus events. They're all reasons why 9 out of 10 AUT graduates recommend us as a great place to study.

Social and collaborative

Studying at Te Ara Poutama – AUT's Faculty of Māori and Indigenous Development – is never an isolated experience. You study in an interactive environment where you collaborate with your classmates, debate and apply your knowledge to find innovative solutions. This collaborative approach creates a close-knit, supportive environment, and for many of our students it's the highlight of their studies.

Creating career-ready graduates

Study with us and you not only learn academic knowledge related to your discipline, but also gain experience of the wider world and valuable industry contacts. Workplace experience is a key part of both the Bachelor of Māori Development and Bachelor of Arts, and your final year includes a work placement in radio, TV, film production, education, government, or a tribal or community organisation.

Technology is in our DNA

Many of our papers incorporate digital concepts into everyday learning and teaching. Our Te Whanake app is the most innovative and interactive way to learn te reo Māori, available to download in the Apple app store or via Google Play. We're also proud of the large library of Apple iBooks we've developed to help our students learn.

Outstanding facilities and equipment

As a student at Te Ara Poutama, you have access to the latest facilities and software to create apps, e-books and films that will help you tell the stories that matter to you and your whānau. Our dual boot lab, for example, is a great place to develop high-quality audio-visual apps and iBooks, or access our Māori language intranet. We also have the latest video recording hardware and software, and a specially designed sound room where students can record voiceovers.

Committed to te reo Māori

At AUT you'll learn te reo Māori in a dynamic and interactive way, and our innovative courses introduce you to te ao Māori – the language and the culture that surrounds it.

University life

As an AUT student you study at a modern and innovative university, and have the chance to meet new people and develop lifelong skills, while getting the support you need to succeed at university and beyond.

At AUT, we celebrate diversity. Our students come from 140 different countries, and we're proud to be the only university that has the Rainbow Tick. Join us, and you'll quickly learn how inclusive and caring our community is.

We offer some of the most comprehensive student support services in New Zealand, including:

- Orientation for all new students
- Student Hub – with dedicated advisors to help with any issue
- Accommodation on campus
- AuSM – AUT student association and clubs
- International student support
- Sport and fitness centres – supporting everyone from elite athletes to social sports teams
- Childcare centres
- Māori student support
- Pacific student support
- Chinese-speaking student support
- Disability student support and resources
- Employability and Careers Hub
- Health, Counselling and Wellbeing centres
- IT support and computer labs
- Library and student learning services
- Rainbow community network and resources
- Student financial services and scholarships office

Anahera Manawa Hare

Tūhoe

Master of Arts student

Bachelor of Arts in Māori Development

"AUT was the obvious choice for me as it is the leading university when it comes to advanced technologies. Throughout my studies, I enjoyed the social support I received from the university and especially my faculty, Te Ara Poutama. Services like the Māori liaison service, the learning mentors and Titahi ki Tua (the AUT Māori Students' Association) helped me to identify other keen, like-minded individuals. These people aren't just my friends now, but family. They have supported me all the way, to the very last haka as I left the graduation stage with my degree."

Helping you succeed

Our library and learning support team offers a wide range of services and resources, including access to an extensive collection of print and online databases, as well as workshops to help you get a head start on your studies. Drop in any time, we're happy to help any way we can.

Study overseas as part of your degree

An international student exchange offers an amazing opportunity to study overseas as part of your degree. Study for a semester or a year at one of our partner universities around the world, and immerse yourself in another culture, make lifelong friends and get international experience before you graduate.

Creating career-ready graduates

The AUT Employability and Careers team helps you plan in advance for your future career by developing job search and interview skills, while building your personal brand and networking skills. We'll also introduce you to employers looking to recruit AUT graduates. Be recognised for your 'C skills' – collaboration, co-operation, community, curiosity, communication and creativity – by completing the AUT Edge Award.

Easy to get help

The AUT Student Hub is the place to go for help. Located on each campus, the Student Hub provides a range of services, from academic or personal advice to questions about fees and support for our diverse student communities.

Support for first-year students

Studying at university can be quite an adjustment. That's why AUT is proactive in helping you transition to university life. From Orientation to our peer mentoring programme where senior students share their experience with you, our student support services make a huge difference to life as a first-year student.

Top internships around the world

A good internship can be the foundation of a great career. That's why AUT Internz places students and graduates with top companies in NZ, Canada and the USA – including Facebook, Paramount Recording Studios, the Sundance Institute, Oxfam, the Metropolitan Museum and Westpac Institutional Bank in New York.

A launchpad for entrepreneurs

Every entrepreneur starts somewhere. At AUT, the best place for aspiring entrepreneurs is CO.STARTERS@AUT. This nine-week programme helps you turn your entrepreneurial ideas into a viable business.

An outstanding learning environment

At AUT you study in an innovative and interactive environment that embraces creativity, collaboration and the sharing of ideas and culture. A number of our buildings have won prestigious architecture awards, and we're constantly improving our built environment to offer students the best possible learning experience.

Bachelor of Arts [BA | MX3704]

Overview

Do you enjoy learning about people and places at an individual, national or international level? Want to learn how to use this knowledge to make a difference in our increasingly globalised society? With the AUT Bachelor of Arts you can choose from 19 majors in areas as diverse as Māori development, languages, criminology, psychology, event management and education. It's great preparation for a huge range of careers, and you can build your degree in a way that suits you – study a single or a double major, select from a wide range of minors or add elective papers from another area of study. Throughout your study you'll develop effective communication, critical thinking and analysis skills, as well as the ability to research and present professionally. These skills are key to any professional role. Your final year includes valuable workplace experience, working on a project or event, or at an organisation related to your chosen major.

Entry requirements

Minimum entry requirements

University Entrance or equivalent

Preferred school subjects

All subjects are useful, in particular Classical Studies, English, Geography, History, History of Art, Media Studies, Social Studies and other languages.

Don't meet the entry requirements?

Consider starting with our Certificate in Business, Certificate in Social Sciences, Certificate in Communication Studies or Certificate in Hospitality and Tourism.

Recognition of Prior Learning

A feature of our programmes is Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL), a system that provides credit for your previous learning and experience. You may be able to get formal credit if you have completed a university or technical institute course that closely matches the level and content of an AUT paper. You normally need to have completed this course within the last five years. If you have a variety of learning and experience (for example professional development workshops and work experience) that matches the learning within a paper, you may be able to apply for non-formal credit.

Bachelor of Communication Studies (Honours)
Bachelor of Arts in Māori Development

"The Southern Initiative is a team in Auckland Council that has been set up to mobilise transformational change in South Auckland over the next 30 years. We work with local communities and other agencies to drive change that will boost employment and business opportunities, improve educational achievement, increase access to affordable and healthy homes, and support social and physical wellbeing. I'm passionate about my work – it's about supporting rangatahi to have a voice and rise up to community challenges. We're doing this in a creative way that also showcases the talent of people in South Auckland. My AUT degree provided me with the kete of skills needed to be a young Māori leader, a change maker, and to pursue my goals of making a positive impact to whānau and Māori."

“The hands-on, practical learning stood out the most for me. I wasn’t just learning theory but also learned how to apply it – and that is only going to help me in my future career. I also loved the positive and innovative atmosphere at AUT. This degree offers an amazing balance of theory and workplace experience. It allowed me to learn not only about myself but also about things I’m passionate about, including my Māori culture and how it is a fundamental part of myself and my work. My degree has inspired me to want to make a difference in the world. I’m passionate about working with young people and hope to make a difference in the lives of young people, not only in New Zealand but also abroad.”

What this qualification covers

Year 1 & 2

You take core papers depending on your major, including papers covering writing, communication, research, culture and society, and digital technologies, along with your major(s) and minor papers.

Year 3

Workplace experience (Cooperative Education) is the final part of your degree and takes a full semester. This is a supervised work placement related to your major(s), for an organisation of your choice. In Year 3, you also study any remaining major or minor papers as well as electives.

Double your career options – study the Bachelor of Arts and:

- Bachelor of Computer and Information Sciences (conjoint)
- Bachelor of Business (conjoint)
- Bachelor of Laws (double degrees)

Today, standing out from the crowd is more important than ever. Conjoint programmes, double degrees and second majors double your knowledge and opportunities, but don't take double the time to complete.

Conjoint programme

You study two degrees at the same time in a single programme of study. It's usually possible to complete two three-year degrees in four to five years. You need to maintain a B grade average across all papers and do papers from each degree every year.

Double degrees

The difference between double degrees and conjoint programmes is that in the double degrees you apply for and enrol separately in each of the two degrees. If you're considering doing this, it's important that you contact AUT to discuss your plans. Double degrees can be completed either one after the other or concurrently.

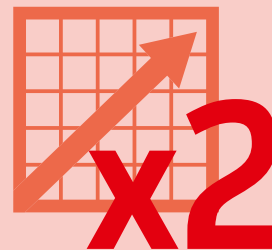

Second majors and minors

When you take a second major from the majors available in your degree this is called a double major. If you take the second major from another AUT degree this is called an additional major. Minors are also available in these and some other subjects. Adding a second major or a minor allows you to study another area that interests you from a wide range of subjects, so long as your timetable permits.

Minors available within Te Ara Poutama:

- History
- Māori Development
- Te Reo Māori

AUT encourages early application. Places are limited.

Double your career opportunities with conjoint or double degree programmes

Te Puea Matoe

Te Roroa/Ngāti Ruahine

3rd-year student, Bachelor of Arts in Māori Development and Bachelor of Laws double degrees

"If you want to make a difference to your community and people, studying double degrees in law and Māori development is a great option. I've long been interested in law, and there's definitely a need for more Māori lawyers. My goal is to use my qualifications to enhance support and opportunities for Māori. AUT is known as an innovative, contemporary university with a community feel and great academic staff. My Māori development and law lecturers have been awesome, not to mention the other students I've met. I've learnt so much – from developing good time management skills to the importance of networking and maintaining good, healthy relationships. I'm proud of my excellent grades, and have received the Peter Harwood Scholarship for Community Excellence and Leadership for the third year in a row."

KEY FEATURES:

- Demand for an understanding of te reo me ngā tikanga Māori
- Valuable workplace experience in your final semester
- Innovative and culturally safe learning environment
- Tailor your study to your career goals and include papers of your interest

Bachelor of Arts Māori Development

Māori development addresses the need for professionals in many fields, including the fast growing sectors of Māori business, education and media. AUT's Māori Development major draws on Māori language and culture to help you develop the skills to succeed in the global world.

You have many opportunities to collaborate with your classmates, apply your knowledge and test new technologies. This major is flexible and offers a wide range of choices to tailor your qualification to your needs and career goals.

What this major covers

Year 1

Your first year begins with the basics of Māori language, communication and presentation systems and aspects of culture and society.

Year 2

In your second year you continue the te reo Māori journey. You also complete papers from your chosen minor or elective papers in your area of interest.

Year 3

In your final year you develop research techniques to prepare you for your workplace experience (the Cooperative Education paper) in your last semester.

Recent placements included:

- Tribal organisations
- Community organisations
- Government agencies
- Teaching across all sectors

Second majors and minors

If you choose a second major or a minor you can study an area of interest from a range of subjects. Having skills in more than one discipline increases your career opportunities.

AUT encourages early application. Places are limited.

SEE YOURSELF AS:

- A leader
- Passionate about helping Māori communities help themselves
- Connected with the community and the world
- Interested in Māori language

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES:

- Consultant – policy and strategic planning
- Entrepreneur
- Government and local authorities
- Iwi business development and resource management

Bachelor of Māori Development in Māori Media

"AUT is a forward-thinking university that really cares about its students. I decided to study at AUT because it's known for its whānau-orientated culture. I grew up in a small rural community called Opahi, so to have such a supportive community at AUT was an amazing feeling. AUT offers numerous opportunities that have the potential to change your life. For example, I completed my degree last December, and now I'm living and working in Los Angeles thanks to the AUT Internz International Scholarships Programme. In this role, I help the Paramount Recording Studios management with the administration. I enjoy being involved in this behind-the-scenes part of the music industry. This internship has shown me that the phrase 'The show business doesn't sleep' is 100% true. I'm really enjoying this internship."

There has been a huge shift in the media landscape in the last decade. The introduction of a Māori television channel has opened many doors for people interested in Māori media. A strong foundation in te reo Māori and basic tikanga is highly valued in this field – regardless of ethnicity. That's why graduates of AUT's Māori Media major have an edge in the competitive media industry. Study with us and you gain insight into the fast-paced media industry, as well as a sound understanding of te reo me ngā tikanga Māori. We're proud of our innovative and supportive learning environment. Throughout your studies, you could build web applications, make films or design interactive multimedia from a bicultural perspective.

Year 1

Your first year introduces you to Māori media studies, helping you develop media production skills from a kaupapa Māori perspective.

The paper Communication and Presentation Systems develops your academic literacy, technological skills and critical thinking, focusing on Māori specific themes.

You also complete the Media Production Workshop paper, which is taught by AUT's School of Communication Studies.

This year we also advise you on the elective papers you can choose in Year 2 and 3. For a list of elective papers refer to page 19.

We encourage you to choose Māori development and te reo Māori papers for your electives, as they cover skills that are crucial for a career in Māori media.

Year 2

In Year 2, you develop your teamwork skills by creating a film, including producing, writing, directing, editing and post-production with a strong Māori or indigenous theme.

Inspiring graduates: Ngahuia Piripi, Shortland Street Actress; Eruini Paranihi, Sports Reporter at Te Kaea; Astley Nathan, Radio Host at Flava, and Te Okiwa Mclean, Reporter at Te Karere.

"I would definitely recommend this degree to others who have a passion for anything Māori, digital and media-related as you gain strong theoretical and practical skills while strengthening your own personal development. The degree was made up of a range of practical papers, keeping me driven throughout my studies. My favourite paper was the Māori media project, which enabled me to guide my own learning. I've now joined Auckland Council as a digital content graduate. It's a two-year graduate programme and a great opportunity for me to gain a range of on-the-job experience in many different departments of Auckland Council."

Bachelor of Māori Development

Trainee, Native American and Indigenous Film Programme, Sundance Institute, Los Angeles
Master of Arts in Māori Development
Bachelor of Communication Studies in Television and Screen Production

"Postgraduate study was a great way to build on my background in communications and television, and explore research related to rangatahi Māori like me from Ōpōtiki. My favourite part of my master's degree was the personal journey it took me on. I wasn't only learning about my subject, but also about my culture and self-identity. After graduating, I was privileged enough to be the first recipient of the AUT Internz International Scholarship to intern at the Sundance Institute in Los Angeles. One of the main goals of the programme is to develop the visibility of Native American and Indigenous artists, and supporting indigenous storytelling. This has huge relevance for me and what I want to achieve as an aspiring indigenous filmmaker."

Master of Philosophy

MPhil | AK3720

The Master of Philosophy (MPhil) is a one-year, research-only master's degree. It provides an opportunity for you to undertake a research topic of an applied or professional nature under the supervision of Māori and indigenous development staff. It can also serve as a pathway to more advanced research at doctoral level.

Entry requirements

Minimum entry requirements

Must have completed one of the following with the equivalent of a B grade average or higher:

- Four-year bachelor's degree OR
- Bachelor's honours degree OR
- Bachelor's degree and postgraduate diploma OR
- Bachelor's degree and at least three years of experience relevant to the proposed research

Other requirements

May be required to complete an approved research methods paper.

What these qualifications cover

You complete an original thesis during this year of your study. Staff in Māori and indigenous development are available to supervise Master of Philosophy research on a wide range of topics.

Career opportunities

As a graduate with a Master of Philosophy you have the necessary skills and qualifications to follow an academic or research career leading to a PhD. Alternatively, your research topic may lead you to a position of expertise in your chosen field.

AUT encourages early application. Places are limited.

For more details visit www.aut.ac.nz/tap

Doctor of Philosophy

PhD | AK3518

The Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) is the University's highest qualification. The degree is undertaken by research only and leads to advanced academic and theoretical knowledge in a specialist area. The PhD is suitable for students who want to pursue an academic or research career, or a senior position in the public or private sector. Doctoral studies present you with the opportunity to generate new ideas that can benefit business and society. You will make a significant original contribution to knowledge and understanding in your field of study and meet recognised international standards for your work. Our academic supervisors are recognised world-class researchers in their fields who have the expert knowledge to guide and advise you throughout your PhD. The opportunities to apply the knowledge and skills you gain will be extensive, both in industry and academia.

Entry requirements

Minimum entry requirements

Must have completed the following in a specialisation appropriate to the proposed research:

- Master's degree with first-class or upper second-class honours OR
- Bachelor's degree with honours (equivalent to 4 years of study), normally with first-class or upper second-class honours
- The programme must have included advanced learning in research and a research thesis/dissertation

Other requirements

Acceptance is subject to the availability of staff for supervision, prior research preparation and appropriate facilities.

Planning your PhD

You are required to prepare a brief proposal for your intended research, specifying the field of research and a general research question you wish to investigate. You should provide official copies of academic transcripts, and evidence of previous independent research outputs, like an honours-level dissertation or master's-level dissertation or thesis. You should also provide evidence of successful completion of studies in research methodology at a postgraduate level. Our staff supervise PhD research on a wide range of topics that cover all aspects of Māori and indigenous development. Visit www.aut.ac.nz/tap for current research and supervision.

"It's inspiring to see the level of leadership and forward thinking AUT staff have, and the way they encourage students to test boundaries and assumptions. It resonated with me straight away when I first attended a language hui at AUT, and helped to ignite my own passion for the discipline. For my thesis, I'm researching my own tribal language history and our language revitalisation journey, in the context of the international work on language revitalisation. I enjoy being around students and experts from New Zealand and the world who are just as passionate about my area of interest as I am. They 'get it' – and are committed to making their research and learning count to make a difference. That speaks to me."

"Doing a PhD provides the skills and experiences for Māori to succeed for their people. We need to continue to build up a critical mass of Māori academics and researchers, so that our people have the skills and abilities to positively transform our whānau, hapū, iwi and communities. I analysed and re-interpreted a prophecy given to the Te Patuheuheu people by the nineteenth century Māori prophet Te Kooti. From that analysis developed the beginning of a hapū development model.

"I was drawn to Te Ara Poutama because of inspirational academics, manaakitanga, and quality, hands-on supervision. AUT has been nothing but supportive. They have been forthcoming with funding and assistance in every way.

"My PhD is really just the beginning of a discussion about how my people can access the knowledge inherent in their culture and history to find ways forward in terms of hapū and community development."

University admission to AUT bachelor's degrees

To gain admission to bachelor's degrees, you must have met the requirements for University Entrance plus any specified admission requirements for a programme, such as specific subjects, portfolios and interviews.

For more information on all admission categories and specific programme requirements refer to the AUT Calendar or visit www.aut.ac.nz/calendar

Please note: AUT, like all other New Zealand universities, is required to manage enrolments. This is because of government policies that restrict the number of funded places available for domestic students in tertiary education.

Admission categories

You may be granted University Entrance under one of the following categories:

- NCEA University Entrance
- Ad Eundem Statum admission (at an equivalent level) – this includes Cambridge International Examinations (CIE)¹ and International Baccalaureate Diploma Programme (IB) if taught in a New Zealand secondary school
- Discretionary Entrance
- Special Admission

1. Domestic students who study CIE in another country may be eligible for this admission depending on subjects covered and levels attained with the qualification. As requirements vary such students should seek advice from AUT.

Common University Entrance requirements

STANDARD	NCEA	CIE ¹	IB ⁴
Overall	Require NCEA level 3 certificate which consists of 80 credits, including at least 60 credits at level 3 or higher. Can include up to 20 credits at level 2. Note: Credits to achieve NCEA level 3 may include unit standards from non-approved subjects. Subject credits Total of 42 level 3 credits including: • 14 credits from one approved subject • 14 credits from a second approved subject • 14 credits from a third approved subject	A minimum of 120 points on the UCAS Tariff ² at A or AS level from an approved list (equivalent to NCEA approved subject list). Must include at least three subjects (excluding Thinking Skills) with grades D or above.	IB Diploma with minimum 24 points
Numeracy	At least 10 level 1 (or higher) numeracy credits (can be achieved through a range of subjects)	A minimum grade of D in IGCSE ³ mathematics or any mathematics subject at AS or A level.	Any mathematics subject – IB Group 5
Literacy	Total of 10 level 2 (or higher) literacy credits including: • 5 reading credits • 5 writing credits From specific standards in a range of NZQA English language-rich subjects.	A minimum grade of E in English Language and/or English Literature subject at AS or A level.	Literature or language and literature (SL or HL) – IB Group 1, with English as the language.

1. Different regulations if CIE is taken outside of NZ or UK. See the AUT Calendar which is available online at www.aut.ac.nz/calendar

2. UCAS (Universities and Colleges Admissions Services for the UK) Tariff = system which converts AS and A level grades into points.

3. IGCSE = International General Certificate of Secondary Education.

4. New Zealand residents who have taken IB but have not been awarded the Diploma may apply for discretionary entrance.

Where programmes require a specific subject, it is expected that a student will have achieved a minimum of 14 credits in that subject (unless indicated otherwise).

NCEA approved subjects

For a list of NCEA approved subjects for University Entrance visit the NZQA website, www.nzqa.govt.nz

AUT language rich subject list

Classical Studies, Drama, English, Geography, Health Education, History, History of Art, Media Studies, Social Studies, Te Reo Māori or Te Reo Rangatira.

Alternative pathways into AUT bachelor's degrees

Students who have just missed University Entrance or did not get into their chosen degree could consider enrolling in one of the foundation studies certificates offered at AUT. Please visit www.aut.ac.nz/apply

Discretionary Entrance

Discretionary Entrance is available to applicants who have attained a high level of achievement in Year 12 and want to undertake university study.

International students can't apply for Discretionary Entrance.

You can apply if you:

- Have not completed Year 13 in a New Zealand secondary school or have done Year 13 but not attempted to gain University Entrance
- Have not otherwise qualified for admission (or have attempted University Entrance)
- Are a domestic student (New Zealand or Australian citizen or permanent resident). If Australian, your most recent schooling must have been in New Zealand
- Are under 20 years of age on the first day of the semester in which you begin study and meet other requirements of the programme for which you apply

People who missed University Entrance in Year 13 may be considered for mid-year admission in the following year.

You can't apply for admission for Semester 1 if you studied in Year 13 after 1 June. However, you can apply for admission into Semester 2.

Minimum academic criteria for Discretionary Entrance

- NCEA level 2 certificate endorsed with minimum of Merit or CIE/IB equivalent
- Minimum of 14 credits in each of four NCEA level 2 (or higher) subjects, at least three of which must be on the approved subject list
- Meet UE literacy and numeracy standards, or their equivalent.

The application is a two-step process. First, you indicate you want to apply through Discretionary Entrance on the standard application form. If you meet the criteria you are sent a second form in which you provide further information and a school recommendation.

The recommendation will provide proof of your maturity, motivation, capability and readiness to undertake degree-level study and also verify that you were not enrolled in Year 13 beyond 1 June in the year prior to admission. Please refer to the AUT Calendar or visit www.aut.ac.nz/calendar

Please note: Applicants are considered on a case-by-case basis and must also meet other selection criteria for the programme for which they have applied. There is a non-refundable assessment fee of $50.00.

Admission at equivalent level (Ad Eundem Statum)

An applicant will be considered for Ad Eundem Statum admission if they:

- Have successfully gained University Entrance through CIE or IB or an approved qualification from a New Zealand secondary school of special character
- Have successfully completed a recognised foundation programme, or other recognised tertiary qualification/study of at least 120 points at level 3 or at least 60 points at level 4 in one course of study
- Have qualifications from an overseas secondary school or tertiary institution deemed by AUT to be sufficient for entry into an undergraduate degree programme.

Please note: Applicants will be required to supply an official academic transcript with their application.

Bursary

If you sat Bursary (prior to 2004) rather than NCEA please refer to the AUT Calendar or visit www.aut.ac.nz/calendar

Special Admission

If you are over 20 years of age you can apply through Special Admission for degree-level study without a University Entrance qualification, if you are a New Zealand citizen or resident. You must be 20 years of age on or before the first day of the semester in which the programme commences. Your ability to succeed in your chosen programme will be taken into consideration.

English language requirements

International students studying at secondary school and applying for University Entrance must achieve UE Literacy through New Zealand secondary school qualifications NCEA, CIE or IB. IELTS cannot be substituted.

Please refer to the English language requirements in the "General Academic Regulations" section of the AUT Calendar or visit www.aut.ac.nz/calendar
